

of staff are trained in their responsibilities. The Office of Police and Safety periodically provides additional training for staff members on safety and security measures.

At the beginning of each semester, resident assistants discuss policies and procedures, including safety and security, with students living on campus. All resident students have access to Policies and Rules, Guide to Residence Living, and Terms, Conditions, and Regulations of the housing Contract, which describe various University, housing and security regulations and their enforcement. In addition, programs sponsored by the Residence Life staff throughout the year include "Personal Safety Tips," "Date and Acquaintance Rape", and "Operation ID." These programs often are presented or cosponsored by the Office of Police and Safety.

Only residents and their invited guests are permitted in the living areas of the residence halls. It is the resident's responsibility to ensure that his or her guest is aware of the University and residence hall policies. It is each resident's responsibility to challenge or report individuals who cannot be identified as a resident or guest of a resident. When the Office of Police and Safety receives a report of an unescorted person in a resident hall, an officer is sent to identify that person.

Residence Halls

Our three traditional residence halls accommodate 620 undergraduate students. Men and women live on separate sides of the same residence hall with a lobby area in between. All three of these buildings are locked between midnight and 7:00 a.m. Both men's and women's living areas have security doors that remain locked twenty-four hours a day. A security Night Assistant is stationed in the lobbies from 8:00 p.m. to 4:00 a.m. to monitor persons entering the hall. All exterior doors in these buildings are equipped with dead-bolt locks and all windows in the living areas can be locked.

Our three new, suite-style, residence halls house 195 undergraduate students in units of four rooms, accommodating two students each, and two bathrooms on each corridor. These buildings have central lobbies with locked corridors leading to the bedrooms. Each bedroom is secured by a dead-bolt lock. Guests can gain entrance to the vestibule where they can call the resident they are visiting. The residents then can come to the vestibule to provide access to their guests through the interior entrance which remains locked at all times.

Apartment Buildings

The Penn State Behrend Apartment buildings house 32 students each, totaling 288 upperclass students. Each individual apartment has two bedrooms, occupied by two students each, a bathroom, kitchen and living room area. Each exterior door and individual bedroom door is equipped with dead-bolt locks which can be secured 24 hours a day. Laundry rooms in the basements of Packett and Yarnell Halls are locked at all times. Access can be gained to those areas by residents' apartment keys.

During low-occupancy periods, such as holidays and breaks, apartment residents are allowed to remain on campus even though a minimum of student services are available. They are informed by letter of emergency procedures in effect during these periods.
