

Question of the week: If you could spend Valentine's Day with anyone, who would it be, and why?

"Murphy Brown. She's good looking, intelligent, good-looking, and she's available."
-Rob Voigt, 03 Business

"Obviously if I was dating someone it would be with her, but since I am not, I would imagine spending it with the Swedish Bikini Team just because!"
-John Hoffman, 06 Biology

"I would like to spend it with the man of my dreams-if I knew who he was."
-Carrie Phillips, 03 BLASC

"With Steve, of course!"
-Wendy Driscoll, 04 Business

"With Steve, too! I'm just kidding! I think my sweetheart knows who he is."
-Anne Moryc, 04 Administration of Justice

"I want to spend my Valentine's Day with all of my professors."
-Anthony Ricciardo, 04 Math and Accounting

"I would like to spend Valentine's Day with my girlfriend. I would probably get in trouble if I didn't."
-Justin Grimm, 06 MET

"I would like to spend Valentine's Day with my pig because she's so cool."
-Aaron Tullio, 06 MET

Footloose part II

WACO, Texas (CPS)--After 151 years, Baylor University is finally rolling back the carpets.

The nation's largest Baptist school is lifting its ban on dancing and will probably see some of its 12,000 students boogeying to country and pop tunes at its annual "Dia de Loso" spring carnival.

Baylor President Robert Sloan unexpectedly made the announcement in January at his usual weekly meeting with student leaders. One student apparently asked if a senior-year friend would be able to dance before leaving school, and the president gave his OK.

According to reports, the president called dancing an often "wholesome activity" that is already done in as aerobic exercise and cheerleading.

Also, most students will not have to learn to dance, noted Baylor spokesman Stan Madden.

"We've had dances for years in downtown Waco," he said. Moving them on-campus just seemed cheaper and easier, despite tradition.

"There are a lot of core values here that will never change," he said. "There'll probably be some of our friends who will be upset. But our students won't embarrass us."

Most students said they were excited by the change. "I think it's great," said Jonette Alexander, a 21-year-old senior from Pineville, La. "It's bringing us into the new century."

Compu-porn

SPOKANE, Wash.--A former Eastern Washington University professor who downloaded graphic photos of children engaged in sex acts onto his office computer was indicted Jan. 23 by a federal grand jury.

Russell C. Boggs, 41, was charged with 122 counts of receiving child pornography by computer and one count of possessing child porn.

Boggs, who had been on the university's staff for 13 years, resigned from his tenured position last August.

According to police reports, the images show children under the age of 15 engaged in sex acts with adults and other children.

Other pictures show genitalia of individual children.

An investigation was launched last June by university police and federal agents after another professor reported seeing some unusual material on the geography department's printer, said Stefanie Pettit, the school's public information officer.

If convicted of both charges, Boggs could face a 15-year sentence, she said.

The university has taken steps to prevent such criminal activity from happening again. "All employees are receiving training as to what is considered proper conduct," Pettit said.

DRUNK DRIVING DOESN'T JUST KILL DRUNK DRIVERS.
Nicholas Esposito, killed Oct. 13, 1989 at 8:25pm.
Next time your friend insists on driving drunk, do whatever it takes to stop him. Because if he kills innocent people, how will you live with yourself?
