Lady hoopers look to improve and compete for AMCC crown

by Matt Plizga sports editor

The Penn State-Behrend women's basketball team will open play this weekend with two important traits of a winning program, enthusiasm and "I am encouraged, we have more enthusiam and energy as a group," said coach Roz Fornari.

This year's roster features few upperclassmen but many returning players. Seniors Emily Marini and Nikki Schultz should provide the inside power and leadership for the otherwise young team. Junior Maria Madigan will also provide experience and leadership for the Lady Lions.

Clarion transfer Kim Moses will join five other sophomores, all of whom saw extensive minutes as freshman for coach Fornari.

A group of five freshmen will be looked upon to provide depth for Behrend. "We have a lot of depth in most of our positions," said Fornari. "The stregnth of our freshman will be helpful as far as what they can add to the team," she added.

The Lady Lions will get off to a fast start before Christmas break playing in two tournaments in a matter of three weeks. "We have two tournaments in three weeks, we would like to win at least one of them," said Fornari.

Coach Fornari feels her teams discipline will be the key to early success. "We need to be able to run different sets and execute our own offense and defense," Fornari added.

The Lady Lions will play seven games before leaving for Christmas break. "Hopefully we will be able to gel a little bit before we leave for December break. Traditionally we have come back and done really well in January and Febuary," said Fornari.

Conference foes should breathe new life into the fans' enthusiasm and create a winning atmosphere inside the walls of Erie Hall.

The addition of a conference schedule will also be a major part of Behrend's season this year. In the past the Lady Lions have only had local rivalries and the ECAC tournament to play for. Conference foes should breathe new life into the fans' enthusiasm and create a winning atmosphere inside the walls of Erie Hall.

"I think the new conference is going to be really important in developing rivalries and give our fans and players something to look forward to each game," said Fornari.

The first opportunity to see the Lady Lions in action will be this Friday at 8:00 pm. Behrend will face Chatham College in the first round of the Penn State-Behrend Tournament. If they win they will face the winner of the Denison-Pitt-Greensburg game in the championships. The consolation game will tipoff Saturday at 1:00 with the championship following directly after.

Sandy Mishic runs away with ATW

Senior Sandy Mishic had a very successful week for the Penn State Behrend cross country team to win Athlete of the Week.

Mishic placed twentieth at the NCAA Mideast Regional Championships, with a time of 19:55. With her strong finish, she led the women's team to a thirty-sixth place finish out of forty-three Mishic's twentieth place finish also earned her the honor of being named to the All-Region team. She missed qualifying for Nationals by only five places.

JV basketball program offers a chance to gain experience for young players

by Matt Plizga

sports editor

As Penn State-Behrend continues to grow in size, so has the athletic 21-22 years old when you are 18, they department. The addition of a junior varsity basketball team will be the latest example of the growth of the Behrend community.

Four years ago the Behrend men's basketball team finished the year with just nine players on the roster. This year 22 players have made the commitment to play college basketball enabling the Lions to have a junior varsity team.

John Gorman will coach this year's squad with the help of assistant coach and former Behrend stand-out Ron Derian. The addition of the JV team will be beneficial to both the young players and the entire basketball program.

" Instead of having a guy sit on the bench his freshman year, this gives him an opportunity to learn the offense, compete and gain game experience," said Gorman.

"It's hard to compete against guys are physically men when you are still just a boy," Gorman added.

The team features plenty of youth with eight of the ten players in just their freshman year while the other two are sophomores.

Despite the youth and inexperience coach Gorman has seen plenty of positive things from his team in their three scrimmages.

The toughest test for the team may have come last Saturday when they faced a team of Behrend alumni. Although they were outsized by a considerable margin the JV team hung tough against the former Behrend allstars.

Among the players they faced where 6'9 Todd Sturgin, 6'8 Steve Berger and Randy Gorniak who holds many records for Berhend. Steff Respress, Lance Burgett, and Rob Hunt also played for the alumni.

One positive for the JV team is their desire to play the game. "We got a bunch of guys who are excited about playing and put forth a lot of effort. Our enthusiasm and effort level are our strengths," said Gorman. It is hard to formulate expectations for wins with a first year program at any level, but the expectations of the coaching staff at Behrend sounds like the ingredients to a winner.

"The expectations are that we work hard and get better day in and day out, obviously you would like to win some games but right now that is not our main concern

The first true test for the JV program will be on November 24 when they travel to Alfred Tech for a 7:30 tip-off. The game will mark a new era at Behrend and help display the growth of the campus.
