Events Notices

Dr. G. William Baxter, assistant professor of physics, will present "Sandbox Physics" on Thursday, January 29 at 7:30 p.m. in Room 101 of the Science Building. Baxter's lecture will describe basic properties of granular matter such as soil, seed, and pharmaceutical powders, which have a variety of industrial applications. While these substances continue to surprise scientists with new and as yet unexplained properties, recent breakthroughs have dramatically improved knowledge and understanding of granular materials. During the lecture, the audience will be encouraged to try several "hands-on" demonstrations illustrating the properties of granular materials. Following Baxter's lecture there will be astronomical observing sponsored by the Behrend Astronomy Club and the Society of Physics Students. For additional information, please call the School of Science at 898-6105.
