The 1997 Spanish film Azucar Amarga (Bitter Sugar) will be shown on Monday, October 5, at 7:00p.m. Directed by Leon Ichaso this film is an emotionally charged portrayal of present day life in Cuba. Azucar Amarga sets a fiery tale of romantic and political passion amid the ashes of the Cuban Revolution. Gustavo, the hero, starts as a model communist whose beliefs are first challenged when he falls in love and begins a torrid affair with Yolanda, a dancer who wants more out of life than political slogans. The solution Gustavo eventually chooses is a desperate one, but conforms to the way Cubans are depicted-as a people trapped between unreasonable alternatives. Azucar Amarga is part of the International Film Series, which continues every Monday through October 26, 1998. The series, which is shown in the Reed Union Building Lecture Hall, is free and open to the public.

Writers Judith Kitchen and Stan Sanvel Rubin will share the stage at Penn State Erie, The Behrend College, for readings from their works

Tuesday, Oct. 6 at 7 p.m. Their presentations, which open the 1998-99 Creative Writers Speaker Series, take place in the Reed Union Building Lecture Hall and are free and open to the public. Kitchen is a celebrated prose writer, editor, critic, and publisher whose spiritual and intellectual autobiography, Only the Dance: Essays on Time and Memory, has won praise from critics for her graceful style. Kitchen is the founder of State Street Press, which publishes a series of chapbooks and books designed to give voice to new American poets, and editor of In Short, a collection of brief creative non-fiction. She is a creative writing instructor at SUNY-Brockport. Rubin, a prolific poet and director of the distinguished Brockport Writers Forum, was educated at Harvard and Temple and studied with Robert Lowell. He oversees a videotape library that forms one of the most comprehensive collections of interviews with American poets, and he has published The Post-Confessionals: Conversations with American Poets of the Eighties, a collection of those interviews. His books of poetry include Lost and Midnight. The Creative Writers Speaker Series is co-sponsored by the Mary Behrend Cultural Fund and by the Clarence and Eugenie Baumann Smith Fund. For more information about the series, please call the Penn State Erie School of Humanities and Social Sciences at (814) 898-6108.
