

you'll be surfing the net in no time

Don't miss out on the Party of Five action

By Angela Rush
staff writer

Have you ever just been flipping through the channels on the television and stopped to check out a show that caught your attention? That's how I discovered Party of Five which is on the air Wednesdays from 9:00pm-10:00pm on Fox.

The scoop on Party of Five is just this: it features shows that reflect real life situations that common everyday people experience. It discusses issues such as alcohol and drugs and so on. The plot generally varies from week to week, but there are always four different stories occurring within any episode. Each character has his or her own message to get across during the course of the show.

Claudia is accepted into a new school that she applied to without anyone's knowledge. Julia and Griffin are having marital problems and Julia wants to attend a college that she was accepted to but does not know how to maintain their relationship, so Griffin decides it would be best just to separate for the time being. Bailey ends up getting back together with Sarah after his relationship with Annie ends. Charlie, the oldest, is struggling with his relationship with Daphne, who recently became pregnant.

So, are you wondering why I have brought this to your attention? Well if you have not seen the show this is your opportunity to catch up with what has gone down lately. Just check out this awesome website

<www.geocities.com/Hollywood/Hills/7706/POF.html>

The website contains summaries of the show, articles about the cast, individual pictures of the cast members, group shots, links to other sites, and many more things concerning the show. The page also contains links to a chat room in which you can just go and discuss the events that have occurred on previous shows or talk about what you think may happen in the future. It is a very informative website and I encourage you to take a few minutes and just look at it, especially if you are a fan of the show. Remember there is always a party with Party of Five.

Gambling on the Internet is easy and fun

David Young
staff writer

Place your bets! A trip to Las Vegas is highly unlikely. A bookie is illegal. Those of you who enjoy the excitement of wagering on your favorite team, or a big game, need look no farther than the Internet. It's fast, it's easy, and it's still legal. The much debated topic of Internet gambling has been going on ever since the beginning of the World Wide Web. The U.S. wants it banned, but right now that looks impossible. As long as it is still on the net it's legal, and gambling is all over the net.

Internet gambling is easier than most people think, and it's not hard to find. <www.gamblingtimes.com> is one of the best and hottest sites on the web. Not only is this an interesting site in itself, but it can lead you to different casinos all over the world, with its global gaming guide. To start wagering you need to set up an account with a certain casino. You usually set this account up through your bank. This is how money is either credited or taken from your account. Then you can wager on almost any sporting event you want to. It is the casino's discretion, to which games are available to wager.

You can browse through the store or look at different gaming magazines. Up to date news is available throughout the gambling world. The gaming news Section will show you all the lines, the hottest places to bet, and also some helpful hints.

Those who get a rush out of a wager but don't have the funds to bet can still find enjoyment on the web, with recreational gambling and fantasy leagues. Gambling for fun is a popular alternative to using real money. There are numerous sites on the web, involving games not requiring money. I recommend the search site <www.dogpile.com> to find such sites.

Not as dangerous as gambling, but still requiring some money are the very popular fantasy leagues. Here you pick and choose your own team and win money depending on how well your team does compared to the competition. Whatever you like to do, I guarantee it can be found on the net, with material you have probably never seen before.

Horoscopes on the Internet

By Kristie Vitron
staff writer

If you are dying to call one of those Psychic Hotlines that are advertised on television to see what the stars have to say about your future, don't bother. Why should you waste your time and money when you can receive the same entertainment over the internet? There are various horoscope and astrological websites for those who are browsing the web for fun or for those who are diehard believers seeking astrologically accurate information.

For whichever you desire, I suggest <www.4yourhoroscope.com>. This site offers daily, weekly, birthday, and work horoscopes. The horoscopes are a lot like the ones that you see in magazines or newspapers. They offer vague hints of the past, present, and future. The readings are done by a psychic named Star Diva. Readings are provided for each of the twelve signs of the zodiac.

For the internet surfers concerned with love, the Star Diva offers love compatibility and romantic profiles. If you know your own and your partner's zodiac signs, the Star Diva is able to tell you your romantic futures together.

I looked up the daily horoscope for Leo, my zodiac sign. My future holds only good things and the horoscope offered me some advice to ensure that this to happen. Most horoscopes on this webpage are probably similar to this. They are meant to entertain you and make you feel good, and they should not be taken too seriously.

The website kept me interested and entertained with a lot of fun and colorful graphics. Each of the twelve zodiac signs were represented and described through various pictures. All of these components made the website fun, and they will probably get me to check my horoscope again some time in the future.

Major League Baseball On-line

by Jason Snyder
staff writer

The 1998 Major League Baseball season has been one for the record books. The home run chase, playoff races, the Yanks' breaking of the most wins in a season in the American League, the end of Cal Ripken Jr.'s streak, and David Wells' perfect game captivated fans around the world. What a season! But wait: It isn't even over yet! So where can you get the latest news and scores from the playoffs? At Major League Baseball's web site <www.majorleaguebaseball.com>.

Not only can you get the latest news and scores, but player profiles, features, games, the official rules and the major league baseball store are also available at this easy to reach, easy to remember web site.

There are so many places to go and people to learn about on this website. From #1-#70, this site captured Mark McGwire's historic chase of Roger Maris's home run record. The journalists and statisticians were there when Sammy Sosa closed in on the heels of Big Mac and as the Yankees closed in on the heels of the 1954 Cleveland Indians wins in a season mark. From spring training to the down to the wire NL wild card race, this site has been there and will continue to be there, keeping fans up to date with the latest baseball scores in the 1998 playoffs.

When you're all caught up with the news and scores, don't log off because there is so much more to do. First, click on PLAYERS to find and read about your favorite player. Biographies are available on any player of your choice. Still have time? Then visit the Major League Baseball library and learn about all of baseball's present day records. But don't leave yet, especially if you're going shopping for baseball gear. Just visit the STORE and do some on-line shopping.

So many options, so little time! So hurry up and find out what is going on in the 1998 playoffs. So much has already gone down this season, you don't want to miss another magical moment.

Featured Internet Web Sites Round-up

- <www.gamblingtimes.com> Site for on-line gambling
- <www.dogpile.com> Search engine
- <www.4yourhoroscope.com> On-line horoscopes
- <www.geocities.com/Hollywood/Hills/7706/POF.html> Latest Party of Five info
- <<http://www.mit.edu:8001/vsg>> Vegetarian information
- <www.thislife.org> This American life
- <www.netscape.com/netcenter/whitepages.html> Internet White Pages
- <www.majorleaguebaseball.com> Official Major League Baseball Web site

Page designed by Mike Perkins