Website of the Week

by Christine Kleck
staff writer

Did you ever notice that everything has a website? You can't listen to more than 2 seconds of radio, watch 5 minutes of TV, or walk down a city block without someone telling you to "visit our website at ...www.something.com".

There are websites for parents, WebPages for kids, and even links to give teachers the latest educational tips. With a click of the mouse you can find sites for avid gardeners, stock market pages galore, and even links to supply the quilter with everything they might need. Hairdressers are no strangers to the net, firemen can be found browsing sites designed especially for them and even priests and ministers have pages to visit!! Wouldn't it be nice if there was a website designed and maintained just for us!!

WWW.collegeclub.com is exactly what we've all been waiting for. From the moment you enter these pages, you will feel right at home, because it's the world's largest on-line college community!

Fill out the membership form and profile to receive endless offers, information, and free services. The more specific you are, the more help this site can be. Behrend, for example, has information on the site specifically about PSU clubs, activities and sports. There are even specific places for Behrend students to go for school help!

As a member, you will have access to all CollegeClub.com member services, including free e-mail and voicemail. You will have opportunities to receive discounts at over 100,000 stores and restaurants. You will also have the chance to create a homepage using the homepage builder. The largest college matchmaker on the web is also one of the benefits of signing up ASAP.

Everything that you do on this page earns you "CC points". Filling out the membership form earns you 100 points. Telling other college friends about the site earns you 25 points. Requesting information about members-only offers can earn you 20 to 50 points. Once you have accumulated enough points you can bid and even buy things from the College Club pages.

The possibilities are endless!! Log on, sign up, and start saving today!!

Visit www.collegeclub.com to take advantage of all these FREE offers:

- Free e-mail ("you've got mail!")
- Free voicemail (by dialing an 888 number!)
- You can hear your e-mail through the phone
- You can meet millions of college students by joining and creating new clubs

STUDENT CLUB OF THE WEEK

The Tempus

by Liz Hayes
associate editor

This week's feature organization is slightly different from the usual clubs found in this column, but is nonetheless an important student-run organization. The Tempus is Behrend's own literary journal, produced almost solely by students.

Tempus provides Behrend's student body with "a forum for artistic expression," according to the magazine's co-editor Ron Hayes. Throughout the year the editors and staff of the Tempus accept written submissions from Behrend students, as well as from faculty and from writers around the world, for publication in the journal. The journal prints high-quality submissions in the poetry, fiction, and creative non-fiction categories. The editors of the Tempus usually plan for about 50-70 entries each year.

In recent years the Tempus has begun to accept submissions from well-known writers outside of the Penn State system so that the journal may get more national recognition. Lucille Clifton was a recent contributor to the journal. Also, well-known figures such as Alicia Ostriker, Tim O'Brien, and Andrea Barrett have helped to choose the winners for the best submissions. Due to its increased exposure in recent years, Tempus has received submissions from as far away as Germany and Jordan for this year's journal.

The Tempus also publishes the three top-placing works that win each of the three writing scholarships available at Behrend - opportunities open only to Behrend students. These scholarships include The Corey Farrell Memorial Award for Non-fiction, The Julia Rebman Memorial Award for Fiction, and The Kenneth Sonnenberg Memorial Award for Poetry.

In addition to written work, the journal also accepts other forms of artwork, such as drawings for its cover page, and other works that may highlight the written work throughout the journal.

The Tempus primarily began production so that it might highlight the work of up-and-coming writers, writers that may otherwise have a hard time getting their work published. Presently, it has become increasingly difficult for new authors to get their works published in larger, more well known literary publications. As Hayes, 07 ELISH, puts it, "... more and more writers are discovering [that] small university magazines such as ours [are] alternatives to the major literary magazines that cater to well-known writers."

Students also have the option of helping to produce the literary journal. There is a class offered every semester - ELISH 002 - that deals with the publication and layout of Tempus. This class meets once a week, and students participating receive one credit for their efforts. However, it is not required that students take the class in order to participate (but one does not receive credits if not in the class). Students involved in the production of the journal deal mainly with publication issues, such as deciding what submissions to include, how to layout the journal, what fundraising methods to utilize, and what artwork to include. There are about 20 students taking ELISH 002 this semester.

In addition to the students involved with the journal, several faculty members provide their expertise as well. Dr. Ann Pancake serves as the journal's official advisor, as well as the instructor for the ELISH 002 class. This year, Professor George Looney, who is new to Behrend this semester, is adding his input to the journal. Looney established the extremely successful Mid-Atlantic Review, a well-known literary journal at Bowling Green University in Ohio.

For those interested in submitting entries for this year's Tempus, submissions are due by January 31, 2000. All submissions must include the author's name, phone number, and mailbox number. Entries are to be no longer than 15 pages, and they must include a title. Submissions can be placed in the Tempus' mailbox in the SGA office. The journal usually comes out during the spring semester in early-mid April, and will then be on sale in the Bookstore. Also, the journal was recently granted an ISBN (International Standard Book Number), and may now be available in local bookstores.

Tempus gives Behrend students a great opportunity to test their creative writingskills, as well as to get their foot in the door by getting published. As Hayes puts it, "exposure is everything to young writers!" For more information about the Tempus, interested students can contact Dr. Ann Pancake at x6444, or Ron Hayes at khsydad@yahoo.com.

HOROSCOPES

- Aries (March 21-April 19). Bongo says, "Know your role!"
- Taurus (April 20-May 20). Finals are the one test you should study for.
- Gemini (May 21-June 21). When life gives you lemons, throw them back.
- Cancer (June 22-July 22). Expand your mind, watch the WWF.
- Leo (July 23-Aug. 22). Enjoy your Thanksgiving dinner, you'll be eating at Dobbins again soon enough.
- Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). Don't be a Jabroni, eat your macaroni.
- Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). Remember that big building with all those books? It's the library - try going inside.
- Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). Kiwi, it's not just for breakfast anymore. (nudge, nudge, wink, wink)
- Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). Do it at home when you have shorts on.
- Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). Live dangerously, get gaveled at an SGA meeting.
- Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb 18). Tell someone what you really think of them and get punched in the face!
- Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20). Spending all of your time obsessing about big sweaty men is not good for your health.
