

Yenscik to stand trial

by Mike Frawley

On October 16, 1999, a Behrend student, Peter Yenscik, was accused of the attempted rape of another student in Niagara Hall. Yenscik was charged with criminal attempt, indecent assault, defiant trespass, harassment, and the purchase, consumption, possession, and/or transportation of liquor or malt or brewed beverages. Yenscik is now scheduled to stand trial in the court of District Justice Mark Krahe, on February 14, 2000.

According to the criminal report filed by an officer of the Penn State Behrend Police and Safety Office, Yenscik made unwanted sexual advances toward a student in the basement of Niagara Hall. The victim rejected Yenscik's advances, broke free, and returned to her room. Yenscik allegedly followed her to her room, acting very erratically. According to the report, Yenscik again made sexual advances toward the student, at which time the student told him no and forced him off of the floor.

Yenscik was then detained by Police and Safety and the Residence Life Coordinators, to whom he admitted that he had consumed two cans of beer in his room earlier that night. The alcohol consumption was also entered into the police report.

Question of the Week

WHAT WAS YOUR FAVORITE SUPER BOWL COMMERCIAL?

"I liked the Fed Ex one, with the Munchkins from 'The Wizard of Oz' singing."

-Cathy Zawadzki, 06, HIST

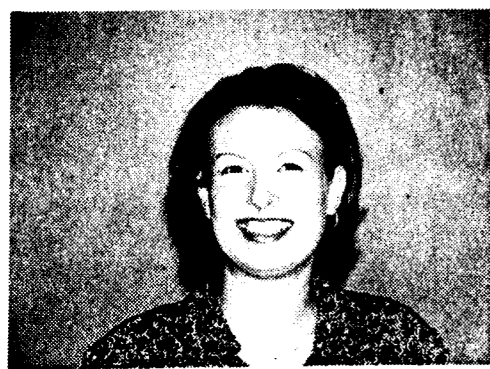

"The e-trade commercial with the two retarded guys and the monkey, where they said at the end of the commercial that they just wasted $2 million on the commercial."

-Dan Denning, 06, Pre-Pharmacy
-Dustin McKay, 04, Business Mngt.

"I didn't watch it!"

-Erin Wright, 06, ENGL. Lit.

"The Mountain Dew one, where the four guys were singing the Queen song from 'Wayne's World'."

-Kris Motta, Asst. Director of Student Activities

"The commercial for a n e-commerce business, where the cowboys were herding the cats. All the cowboys had scratches on their faces & stuff, and that was pretty funny."
