

MORE GOOD TIMES

MEGAN LONCARIC

Hey. Random fun fact: People in history did some pretty wacky things. For instance, in Greece, they would construct a huge penis and dance around it. They called this "theater." Then they would have these other people carry in huge penises and they called them "actors." This is as I understand it from my theater class, and I'm probably mistaken. Anyway, back by popular indifference, here are some more crazy antics from everybody's favorite department store:

Set up a campsite in the camping department- We set up the camping stuff and proceeded to sit around for 15 minutes until a janitor told us to clean it up. That's his job! What a slacker.

Catch things from the other aisles using the fishing rods- five minutes of doing this produced a headache and someone knocking over a big box of stuff from the top of the aisle.

See if other customers have any Grey Poupon - Most popular reply to this was, "No." One person told us that we remind him of when he was young and stupid. Jackass.

Play with the automatic doors- This is way more fun than it should have been.

Attempt to put others into very large gym bags - We asked people, "Hey, can we put you in here?" Note to self: Don't ask if you can do it. Just do it and see what happens.

Relax in the patio furniture until you get kicked out - The record was six hours, but he didn't get kicked out. He just had to leave to go to work.

It's been crazy. See ya next time.

BEN TITUS

I realized a "Ben Titusless" humor section sucks, so I'm back and here to please. The last couple humor sections also made me realize how overrated the humor section is without me, so this week I decided to write about other overrated things. Now, some of these will be rants and some will only be a couple words, but none the less I hope they entertain you more than the crap you have been forced to read lately. So here I go.

SPACE SHUTTLES - Space shuttles are the most overrated thing ever! I mean seriously, what have we gained from going to outer space? Wow, cool pictures of things no one cares about. The only thing that goes on in space is muscle atrophy and kinky, kinky, space sex with vegetables and monkeys in the background. And what about the people who have this kinky sex, like the first female astronaut, Sally Ride? Do you want to know what Sally Ride is doing? Sally Ride is busy looking out for Sally Ride! If she saw you lying on the road not only would she not stop to help you but she would also try to spit on you. Space shuttles make me sick.

CAMOUFLAGE - Okay, once upon a time camouflage was useful but with modern weapons it's pointless. Especially since most secretive operations happen at night. I got news for the guy who is painting his face, as we speak. When they blow up the building you're in it doesn't matter if the missile can see you or not. Well, I guess it has a use for one group of people: Perverts! I mean, I always see Mike Butala painting his face and peeking into girls windows. I still find it overrated.

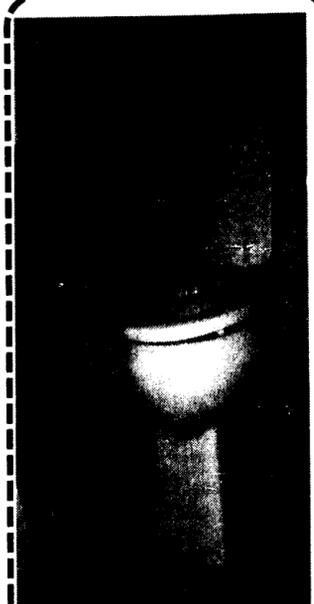

WOOKIES - Wookies are the dumbest and hairiest animals ever. The Wookiee should have stayed with Han Solo because now it's going to be hurting. I mean, this "Star Wars" creature is so dumb that it would mess around with a girl who was dating some guy that weighs 240 pounds and takes martial arts. Oh yeah, the guy probably has a group of very violent friends who are prone to action.

BEHREND HOCKEY - Behrend hockey is overrated just for existing! I mean, I have heard of things that suck but this takes the cake. Behrend hockey lost the other weekend to Slippery Rock 15-0! That is like losing 200 - 3 in basketball. Not only do they suck, but they lost to an inferior state school. I think maybe that entire team should get out of Behrend.

DEAD BABY JOKES - What can I say; these are the worst jokes ever. They make my stomach queasy every time I hear them. I always hear jokes coming from the ZBT bench at Bruno's. GROW UP GUYS!

CROSS FIRE - This was the worst game ever. I remember the commercials for this game and just thought, WOW. Let me refresh you on this game. Crossfire is where there are two objects and you try shooting them into your opponent's side. I thought this game was going to be the next "Hungry Hungry Hippos" but instead it was the next "Mouse Trap".

THE PRINCESS DIARIES - Now, I thought this was the worst film ever and I believe most of the population agreed with me, but I was wrong. The one man I know that loves this more than anything is Tommy Winchell. I cannot describe how much Tommy Winchell loves "The Princess Diaries" but if I had to I would describe it like this: If I was on AOL Instant Messenger I wouldn't use just a smiley face but the big smiley face where you can see grinning teeth. As much as Tommy loves "The Princess Diaries," I still believe it is overrated. But not his cute smile☺.

Owners of the Papa Smurf Beer Bong in Ohio Hall

I love Gargamel and Papa Smurf is fairly rad, too, so naturally anyone who has a Papa Smurf Beer Bong is "fairly" cool. But what's with the case of Coors Light in the background and is that a Skyy Blue I see on the desk? Capitalist wussies!

Charlie Gaglione I'm Not GAY

Now I'm not a homophobe or anything, it's just that I don't like it when guys touch me. It's gross, so don't do it. If you're gay, fine, just don't get gay on me or my friends (either of them).

Now, I had a best friend in high school who went to college before me. When he came back he gave me a hug. Now, I was a little uneasy considering this was the first time (besides my dad, and the occasional slap of the hands) that I had ever had actual physical contact with another male.

When I confronted him later about my concerns, he called me a homophobe and said that, "If you go to college, you'll understand."

I don't know what that meant, but I'm in college and I feel no different. One thing that has changed is that I now have the ability to admit when another man is good looking. I have concocted a list of 10 men who I think are good looking, even though I'm not gay.

- 1.) Brad Pitt
- 2.) Ryan T. Reinhardt
- 3.) Jackie Gleason
- 4.) The Guy who played Otter in Animal House
- 5.) Ryan Phillippe
- 6.) Denzel Washington
- 7.) A.C. Slater from "Saved By the Bell"
- 8.) The Young Frank Sinatra
- 9.) Charlie Gaglione
- 10.) Every Guy in 98 Degrees

Tip Your Bartender: The Devil

This article was supposed to be about hippies and the blight they have placed on society, but due to recent events in my life, it will instead be about something far worse: cell phones. You see, despite what prospective cell phone users may think, they are evil. Cell phones are manufactured by Beezlebub, Lucifer, and maybe even the devil, too.

My problems with cell phones are deep rooted in my conscience. I really dislike people who make it their business to annoy others around them, and since the invention of cell phones, it became infinitely more easy for them to do so. At first people thought it was "blingin'" to have cell phones, and at the prices back then, it was. But nowadays, every dirtball in the country can afford one. And this brings up the question of, why do they need one? Simply put, they don't. Who are they going to call, their other dirtball friends? Exactly. Inter-dirtball communication is something that needs to be kept to a minimum, especially in public, where they would be using their cell phones.

Ahh, but I digress. The reason why I'm writing this article is because on my way back to school on Sunday night, I stopped at a grocery store to get some supplies for the week (if this were any other state than Pennsylvania, supplies would be beer.) While in line at the check out, the hip young fellow in front of me was engaged in a two-way call. For those uninitiated to cell phone lingo, this is the type of call that allows you to hold your cell phone away from your head and talk in a sort of walky-talky conversation. One person talks, the phone beeps, and then the other person talks, as made popular by world renowned actor Denis Franz. So basically, myself and everyone around this punk could hear the whole conversation. As I stood there, wishing something heavy would fall on him, my arms tensed and my blood pressure slowly rose. I was fighting off the urge to smash him in the face with my jar of pickles. What the hell was so important that he had to annoy everyone around him? Could it have waited until he got back to his phat pad? Rather than ask him about it, I paid for my groceries and tore ass outta the parking lot in my '89 Cierra. I guess I'm just a wuss with a badass car.

Another thing that I'm sure everyone has noticed is, as I pointed out in my column last week, that everywhere on campus that was once quiet and serene is now populated by people with cell phones. Walk around anywhere on campus after its dark, and you'll see people with cell phones. Who are they talking to? Obviously someone far too important to call from the privacy of their own room. Although maybe this is a benefit, because the campus is now safe from late night pickpockets and brigands.

One positive thing about cell phones is that they grant their user impeccable fashion sense. All that needs to be done is simply affix them to the outside of your belt when not in use, and tuck in the front of your shirt. This way, even when you're not talking on your cell phone and alerting everyone in your vicinity that you suck, they will see your cell phone, and immediately think better of you.

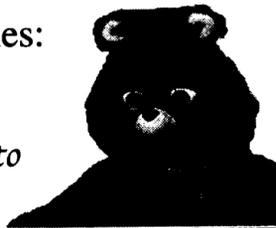

Another tip to gain the acceptance of your peers is to check your email on your cell phone during class. Be sure not to do it discreetly, though. Be loud about it and make a lot of noise when doing so. People who are less debonair than you will respect the fact that you're much higher on the savvy food chain.

And finally, if you're driving, be sure to utilize this time alone to talk on your cell phone. It will free your "extra" hand from the steering wheel and allow you to focus your attention on that important phone call you needed to make. Talking on your cell phone in heavy traffic will also alert nearby drivers that you will be functioning at your highest level of alertness during subsequent lane changes.

I hope this article has alerted you to the pros and cons of cell phones. I also hope that the next time you use your cell phone, you explode.
