Eric Marker, Eden Rosborough, Erin Troester, Krystal Mientkiewicz, Erin Hilla, Joell Sperry, DeAdra Walker, Matt Arch, Becky Gonzalez and Michelle Newland were the students who attended the alternative spring break.

Everyone seemed to enjoy themselves while working and had a good time during breaks. Community service offers a sense of fulfillment, that going and bumming on the beach can't match.

"This is an experience that I think all of us will cherish. Everyone should go," student Walker said.

Students who missed this year's alternative spring break, or just didn't have the time to go on it have other opportunities for community service.

Shrout said, "Students can tutor, participate in environmental cleanups or work soup kitchens among other things."

If any student is interested in making a difference by performing community service, they can get in touch with Kelly Shrout. Students can come by her office in the Smith Chapel.

Housing and Food Services

from what students pay in room and board.

The goal of Housing and Food Services is to provide housing for 50 percent of Behrend students. Senat Hall, with its 150 spaces, will bring the campus capacity to 1,645.

Current students seem unfazed by the erection of the new building. Most are not distracted or curious as to how the final product will affect the campus.

"I don't (expletive) care," said an unsympathetic Eileen Haase, PSYCH 04.

In addition to the construction of the new residence hall, Perry, Lawrence and Niagara will each undergo a series of renovations to improve safety and comfort.

The renovations were sparked by a need to install sprinkler systems. The dorms will obtain new electrical, as well as telephone and data wiring. In a two-phase project, Perry, Lawrence and Niagara will receive carpeting in hallways and bedrooms, new wardrobes, painted walls, new ceilings and lighting and upgraded lobbies. All doors will be removed and replaced and a card access system is to be installed.

Phase I was completed last summer in Perry Hall, once known as "the pit." Phase II of the project, which includes a new peaked roof, will be implemented this summer. By the beginning of fall 2004, all the dorms will have sprinkler systems.

To accommodate the 150 more mouths to feed, Dobbins will be renovated as well. The seating area of Dobbins is to be expanded from 500 to 650 seats. The kitchen area will be modified and enlarged as well.

"We're planning on adding more point-of-contact cooking," said Geering, "We want to accentuate freshness and prepare the food right in front of the student."

The Dobbins renovation will be completed in early 2006 in congruence with the construction of the Research and Economic Development Center.

"We want to ensure students are provided with a quality education and a quality property and living space," said Geering.
