Student receives multiple counts

Literally, before I made it back to the couch, he busted our door down. He broke the entire door frame, lock and everything. The entire side of the door was broken off."

"He broke the entire door frame, lock and everything. The entire side of the door was broken off."

Once inside again, Citriniti went after the same girl he had assaulted before.

"He came back to my same friend and tried pulling her pants down again," said the resident. "We told him he had to leave. The security guard heard the door getting knocked down and came running up. The kid sat on our couch, just sat, and stared at us, and wouldn't leave for anything. The security guard told us to wait downstairs to get a state trooper when they come."

The residents of the apartment waited at the scene of the car accident for the State Police to come. When the authorities arrived, they walked back to the apartment and noticed the security guard was outside, holding the door shut.

"The security guard said he was trying to leave so he was holding our door shut to stop him," said the resident. "As soon as the State Trooper opened the door, the kid pulled down his pants and started urinating on our floor, right in front of him."

Soon, more State Police arrived and tried to apprehend Citriniti.

"We were waiting outside while four State Troopers and two paramedics were wrestling with him, unable to restrain him," said the resident. "Eventually, they told us to come back in when they had him wrestled to the ground so they could get our statements, but he kept fighting back so they had to taser him. He still wouldn't stop moving, so they ended up tasing him about four or five times. They finally had to strap him to a gurney to get him out."

A resident of the apartment in which the incident occurred was impressed by the speed at which University Gates management responded to the damages.

"By 10 o'clock the next morning, maintenance came and had our door fixed," said the resident. "[University Gates Manager] Wendy [Hull] came up and checked on us later that afternoon and made sure we were all ok, gave us her cell phone number in case we needed anything or if anything went wrong. Even more maintenance came and checked on us to make sure our door was ok. They were very quick to respond, they double-checked and triple-checked."

The charges against Citriniti were filed at the office of District Judge Mark Krahe.

The police investigation of the incident is still underway.

Burke delays retirement

"One that was just started is a facility for soccer, recreation, track, intramurals and other activities," said Burke. "We're also working on the Reed building. A project that may go out in January decks the book store, and we may add a fitness center since we know Junker is oversubscribed."

"I've been here for twenty eight years, so why not twenty nine?"

John D. "Jack" Burke has been Behrend's chancellor for 28 years.

Also among the buildings Burke would like to see constructed is a new residence hall which has already been given the name Tripp Hall. On top of all that, Burke has also put in a proposal for a building dedicated to Fine Arts.

"There's a lot of stuff hanging out there and I'd like to nail some of it down."

Another reason Burke decided to stay on was to oversee the process of picking a successor. A search committee will be assembled to find Burke's replacement, which then goes through the Vice President for Commonwealth Campuses, John Romano. The process begins in August and should be completed sometime in the Spring, according to Burke.

Once retired, Burke plans to return to his hometown in upstate New York and live in "a place he's fixing up." Burke also hopes to write, volunteer, and travel. When asked what he was looking forward to most, Burke replied, "to get healthy."

Burke's official start date at Behrend was Aug 1, 1981, when he succeeded then-Provost John Lilly.

"It was a different place back then," said Burke. "When I came here there were three residence halls: Niagara, Perry and Lawrence. Dobbins was much smaller. Reed, Erie Hall, Turnbull, Glenhill Farmhouse, Nick and Behrend were the only buildings here."

Burke has had a major impact on Behrend, and is the reason the campus has become what it was today, citing the creation of the REDC and Junker Center as some of his proudest moments. Burke plans to stay involved with Behrend after he retires.

"I'm sure I will be involved from afar and be back from time to time," said Burke. "This place has been under the same leadership for a long time and it's going to be a big change. I'm sure those folks will want someone that has institution memory."

"From my perspective, the most important thing here is the people. I would say Behrend's greatest strength is its people. I think it's a beautiful campus, and I think there's a team spirit here which makes me feel good. When I look over the years, it's the people that I feel strongest about. There's an energy and a pride that the people here take in Behrend."

THE INFO FOR ELECTION DAY

- Need a ride to the polls?

SGA is running a shuttle every half hour to the Brookside Fire Dept. from 8 a.m. to 6:30 p.m. Students should meet in the Reed Wintergarden to catch a ride to vote.

- Remember to bring ID.

In Pennsylvania, voters need to provide a form of ID the first time they vote at a specific polling place. Driver's licenses, school IDs, and voter registration cards are valid.

- If needed, ask for a provisional ballot.

If the polling place loses your registration, you can fill out a provisional ballot. Voting officials will review your registration after Election Day and if they find you had registered correctly, they will count your vote in the official tally.
