

The week's sights and scenes caught on camera

Over 20 people participated in cheerleading tryouts this year. Every year, past members of the Penn State Behrend Cheer Squad go through tryouts once again in order to see if they still make the grade required to be a cheerleader.

Penn State Behrend Cross Country started the season off at the Westminster Invitational, held at Westminster College. The course contained some hill areas and flat ground that wrapped around a lake by the campus.

This year's cheerleaders are a mix of new and returning members now. It has been a few years since there has been new members on the team, and will bring a new look to the group.

There are over 30 members of Pathfinders this year. Most of the members are enrolled in the Army ROTC program at Penn State Behrend.

Pathfinders meet for the first time and get their gear ready for future meetings. All gear used by the club is U.S. Government equipment, issued by the Army ROTC program.

Junior Hillary Lasher is ready for another season of tennis this year. She and other tennis players hope to do well this weekend at the Behrend Tennis Invitational.
