A section examining how Behrend students are making a difference in their community

Behrend students attend leadership seminar at Bayfront Convention Center

For college students today, just getting a degree isn't enough to succeed in the outside world. Companies not only look at diplomas and grades, but also at someone's personal skills.

Leadership is probably ranked with some of the most important attributes. It is one of those skills that are a key to success. So the problem is how does one gain leadership skills? Some students found the answer at the recent Leadership Conference that took place on Jan. 22-23.

At the conference, which took place at the Erie Bayfront Convention Center, the current leaders of clubs and students who wanted to gain the skills of a leader enjoyed not just great meals and entertainment, but also workshops that help define the necessary skills.

"Probably one of the biggest items to take out of the conference was not just what a leader is, but the confidence that comes from learning the skills and ideas of a leader," said Jill Caldwell, Associate Director of Student Activities and one of the organizers of the conference.

Katelyn Monoskey, a sophomore involved in Math Club and Leadership United, also found that the conference had a lot more to offer than just lectures.

"Even though I was a little hesitant at first, I found it really beneficial to me as a student," Monoskey said.

"Along with being very interactive, the workshops at the leadership conference offered us a chance to see what kind of leaders we are individually."

Along with the workshops, guest speakers such as Cassandra Garrison, a news anchor for Action News 24, gave a few words of advice about how the qualities of being a leader apply in real world situations.

Not all students who went to the conference were new to the program, such as Julie Ober, a senior who is team leader of Leadership Unlimited.

great for new students to get involved in college life," Ober said. "You have so many opportunities like this to develop yourself as a person."

I really enjoyed learning about The FISH! Philosophy. Not only was the speaker [Lynn Zlotkowski] full of energy and motivation, her philosophy of leadership reassured us that being leader isn't just about being tough and down-to-business, but that we can have fun with it also.

"We are currently doing this once a year," said Lindsey Hopkins Hall, Coordinator of Student Involvement and Fraternity and Sorority Life. "We will probably expand more for next year because of the great turnout from Behrend students. Hopefully there will be more to offer for our students."
