

Eugene Cross deemed "too attractive to teach" at PSB

FUTURE SEXUAL HARRASSMENT CASE WAITING TO HAPPEN
contributing writer

Sources confirm: Eugene Cross is HOT. His hotness, apparently, is a problem on campus, but not to the students.

Professor Cross, or as he has been nicknamed by his female and male students, "Professor Sexy," has caused quite a ruckus around campus since he started teaching.

Anyone who denies that Cross is attractive has either spent their college life asleep on a couch (you know who you are), or has been in a drunken stupor (you also know who you are).

If you have absolutely no idea who he is, rush to Kochel immediately. If you don't know where Kochel is, that's another problem entirely.

Let's face it, Cross gives the male population a horrible name. You look at him and then compare this fine specimen to the other men on campus and then you want to cry.

"You don't even understand what I would give to be him. To BE Eugene Cross," says Neil James.

I hate to say it, but he is the Edward Cullen of Behrend, except better. Please hold your distaste at the thought of comparing this lively creature to some fictional character because you know it's true. What's so nice is that he's a real human being.

When you hear what sounds like the squeaks and giggles of a 4-year-old girl, either there are puppies running around or there has been a Cross sighting. If I had a dollar for every time this happened, I could probably pay my Penn State tuition in full.

A lot of girls take his class not because they want to learn about poetry and literature, but because they get at least 50 minutes of possible chances to talk to Cross, as well as have an excuse to stare at him; Although, it is hard to imagine

BREAKING NEWS: Cat stuck in tree. Crisis averted: Eugene Cross saves the day with lines of poetry.

The New Oxford American Dictionary just sent out a press release saying that Cross has earned a coveted spot in their 2011 edition. Definition: chick magnet; See also: attractive, handsome, charming, deadly, god, wow.

Elf spies confirm that Ben and Jerry's is creating a special ice cream for this young professor called "Crossoholic." It comes with a companion flavor: "Chocolate Crossoholic."

NASA confirms that the stars aligned when Eugene Cross was born.

anyone passing his class when they are fixated on his entrancing eyes, and the fact that half of what he says goes in one ear and out the other. His increasing list of attractive qualities might make him seem like a hindrance during class, but in all actuality they can be quite motivating.

"His beauty is not a problem, but sometimes when I look at him, I imagine him kissing a dolphin," says Gia Redwine.

Unfortunately for Cross, the recently discovered School of Humanities and Social Sciences feels that he is overqualified to teach. With continuous requests from around the world to baptize babies and bless animals, they feel Cross has a higher calling.

Cross' hotness is a possible cause of the many fires on campus, including the Dobbins blaze. Nothing could extinguish this man, and Behrend probably doesn't have enough money to fireproof all of the buildings.

"He can set me on fire anytime," said Hailey Holtz and Grant West simultaneously.

It is a loss that will be strongly felt throughout North America.

Sources say that Cross will take refuge in a remote area of Antarctica before re-emerging in all of his perfect beauty.

He will not be forgotten, though.

BEHREND BEACON
April 1, 2010
www.thebehrendbeacon.com

3

Intent of hoax: solve Dobbins Effect

CONTINUED FROM FRONT PAGE.

The answer is obvious. School administration wished to solve the problem of the "Dobbins Effect."

According to studies, the all-you-can-eat option for a cheap price with the student meal plan makes freshmen vulnerable to the Effect. Believing they were eating real food, the student would go to different stations, piling everything they could fit on a tray, preparing for the next Erie famine.

The consequences go unnoticed until they can no longer button their jeans.

To combat this, the school used the proximity of the dining hall to battle

the weight gain.

"The dorms are so located so you have to work before you get your food," said Miller. "Because of our location, we were able to at least keep off five pounds from the Freshman fifteen."

However, this setup ignored the upperclassmen living in Tigress, Tiffany, and Porcupine Halls who did not have to walk far for fine dining.

The board went to work. There was talk about relocating the suites, but that would've taken too long, and there weren't enough boxes left over from Cardboard City to house all those students. Maya Iglesia, the newly elected member, suggested the relocation of Dobbins.

"This is for the greater good of Behrend," said Iglesia. The suggestion of Erie Hall came up, a newly found structure on the Behrend property that resembled a gym.

"No one knew about it," said Ken Miller. "We just stumbled across it when looking for a new location."

With the new location at Erie Hall dinner trips will be lengthened. But what about the students living in Almy and Ohio, who already have the greatest walks to everywhere on campus?

"They'll just have to deal," Miller said. "They'll be less fat in the long run."

the weight gain.

"The dorms are so located so you have to work before you get your food," said Miller. "Because of our location, we were able to at least keep off five pounds from the Freshman fifteen."

However, this setup ignored the upperclassmen living in Tigress, Tiffany, and Porcupine Halls who did not have to walk far for fine dining.

The board went to work. There was talk about relocating the suites, but that would've taken too long, and there weren't enough boxes left over from Cardboard City to house all those students. Maya Iglesia, the newly elected member, suggested the relocation of Dobbins.

"This is for the greater good of Behrend," said Iglesia. The suggestion of Erie Hall came up, a newly found structure on the Behrend property that resembled a gym.

"No one knew about it," said Ken Miller. "We just stumbled across it when looking for a new location."

With the new location at Erie Hall dinner trips will be lengthened. But what about the students living in Almy and Ohio, who already have the greatest walks to everywhere on campus?

"They'll just have to deal," Miller said. "They'll be less fat in the long run."

the weight gain.

"The dorms are so located so you have to work before you get your food," said Miller. "Because of our location, we were able to at least keep off five pounds from the Freshman fifteen."

However, this setup ignored the upperclassmen living in Tigress, Tiffany, and Porcupine Halls who did not have to walk far for fine dining.

The board went to work. There was talk about relocating the suites, but that would've taken too long, and there weren't enough boxes left over from Cardboard City to house all those students. Maya Iglesia, the newly elected member, suggested the relocation of Dobbins.

"This is for the greater good of Behrend," said Iglesia. The suggestion of Erie Hall came up, a newly found structure on the Behrend property that resembled a gym.

"No one knew about it," said Ken Miller. "We just stumbled across it when looking for a new location."

With the new location at Erie Hall dinner trips will be lengthened. But what about the students living in Almy and Ohio, who already have the greatest walks to everywhere on campus?

"They'll just have to deal," Miller said. "They'll be less fat in the long run."

the weight gain.

"The dorms are so located so you have to work before you get your food," said Miller. "Because of our location, we were able to at least keep off five pounds from the Freshman fifteen."

However, this setup ignored the upperclassmen living in Tigress, Tiffany, and Porcupine Halls who did not have to walk far for fine dining.

The board went to work. There was talk about relocating the suites, but that would've taken too long, and there weren't enough boxes left over from Cardboard City to house all those students. Maya Iglesia, the newly elected member, suggested the relocation of Dobbins.

"This is for the greater good of Behrend," said Iglesia. The suggestion of Erie Hall came up, a newly found structure on the Behrend property that resembled a gym.

"No one knew about it," said Ken Miller. "We just stumbled across it when looking for a new location."

With the new location at Erie Hall dinner trips will be lengthened. But what about the students living in Almy and Ohio, who already have the greatest walks to everywhere on campus?

"They'll just have to deal," Miller said. "They'll be less fat in the long run."

the weight gain.

"The dorms are so located so you have to work before you get your food," said Miller. "Because of our location, we were able to at least keep off five pounds from the Freshman fifteen."

However, this setup ignored the upperclassmen living in Tigress, Tiffany, and Porcupine Halls who did not have to walk far for fine dining.

The board went to work. There was talk about relocating the suites, but that would've taken too long, and there weren't enough boxes left over from Cardboard City to house all those students. Maya Iglesia, the newly elected member, suggested the relocation of Dobbins.

"This is for the greater good of Behrend," said Iglesia. The suggestion of Erie Hall came up, a newly found structure on the Behrend property that resembled a gym.

"No one knew about it," said Ken Miller. "We just stumbled across it when looking for a new location."

With the new location at Erie Hall dinner trips will be lengthened. But what about the students living in Almy and Ohio, who already have the greatest walks to everywhere on campus?

"They'll just have to deal," Miller said. "They'll be less fat in the long run."

the weight gain.

"The dorms are so located so you have to work before you get your food," said Miller. "Because of our location, we were able to at least keep off five pounds from the Freshman fifteen."

However, this setup ignored the upperclassmen living in Tigress, Tiffany, and Porcupine Halls who did not have to walk far for fine dining.

The board went to work. There was talk about relocating the suites, but that would've taken too long, and there weren't enough boxes left over from Cardboard City to house all those students. Maya Iglesia, the newly elected member, suggested the relocation of Dobbins.

"This is for the greater good of Behrend," said Iglesia. The suggestion of Erie Hall came up, a newly found structure on the Behrend property that resembled a gym.

"No one knew about it," said Ken Miller. "We just stumbled across it when looking for a new location."

With the new location at Erie Hall dinner trips will be lengthened. But what about the students living in Almy and Ohio, who already have the greatest walks to everywhere on campus?

"They'll just have to deal," Miller said. "They'll be less fat in the long run."

the weight gain.

"The dorms are so located so you have to work before you get your food," said Miller. "Because of our location, we were able to at least keep off five pounds from the Freshman fifteen."

However, this setup ignored the upperclassmen living in Tigress, Tiffany, and Porcupine Halls who did not have to walk far for fine dining.

The board went to work. There was talk about relocating the suites, but that would've taken too long, and there weren't enough boxes left over from Cardboard City to house all those students. Maya Iglesia, the newly elected member, suggested the relocation of Dobbins.

"This is for the greater good of Behrend," said Iglesia. The suggestion of Erie Hall came up, a newly found structure on the Behrend property that resembled a gym.

"No one knew about it," said Ken Miller. "We just stumbled across it when looking for a new location."

With the new location at Erie Hall dinner trips will be lengthened. But what about the students living in Almy and Ohio, who already have the greatest walks to everywhere on campus?

"They'll just have to deal," Miller said. "They'll be less fat in the long run."

the weight gain.

"The dorms are so located so you have to work before you get your food," said Miller. "Because of our location, we were able to at least keep off five pounds from the Freshman fifteen."

However, this setup ignored the upperclassmen living in Tigress, Tiffany, and Porcupine Halls who did not have to walk far for fine dining.

The board went to work. There was talk about relocating the suites, but that would've taken too long, and there weren't enough boxes left over from Cardboard City to house all those students. Maya Iglesia, the newly elected member, suggested the relocation of Dobbins.

"This is for the greater good of Behrend," said Iglesia. The suggestion of Erie Hall came up, a newly found structure on the Behrend property that resembled a gym.

"No one knew about it," said Ken Miller. "We just stumbled across it when looking for a new location."

With the new location at Erie Hall dinner trips will be lengthened. But what about the students living in Almy and Ohio, who already have the greatest walks to everywhere on campus?

"They'll just have to deal," Miller said. "They'll be less fat in the long run."

the weight gain.

"The dorms are so located so you have to work before you get your food," said Miller. "Because of our location, we were able to at least keep off five pounds from the Freshman fifteen."

However, this setup ignored the upperclassmen living in Tigress, Tiffany, and Porcupine Halls who did not have to walk far for fine dining.

The board went to work. There was talk about relocating the suites, but that would've taken too long, and there weren't enough boxes left over from Cardboard City to house all those students. Maya Iglesia, the newly elected member, suggested the relocation of Dobbins.

"This is for the greater good of Behrend," said Iglesia. The suggestion of Erie Hall came up, a newly found structure on the Behrend property that resembled a gym.

"No one knew about it," said Ken Miller. "We just stumbled across it when looking for a new location."

With the new location at Erie Hall dinner trips will be lengthened. But what about the students living in Almy and Ohio, who already have the greatest walks to everywhere on campus?

"They'll just have to deal," Miller said. "They'll be less fat in the long run."

the weight gain.

"The dorms are so located so you have to work before you get your food," said Miller. "Because of our location, we were able to at least keep off five pounds from the Freshman fifteen."

However, this setup ignored the upperclassmen living in Tigress, Tiffany, and Porcupine Halls who did not have to walk far for fine dining.

The board went to work. There was talk about relocating the suites, but that would've taken too long, and there weren't enough boxes left over from Cardboard City to house all those students. Maya Iglesia, the newly elected member, suggested the relocation of Dobbins.

"This is for the greater good of Behrend," said Iglesia. The suggestion of Erie Hall came up, a newly found structure on the Behrend property that resembled a gym.

"No one knew about it," said Ken Miller. "We just stumbled across it when looking for a new location."

With the new location at Erie Hall dinner trips will be lengthened. But what about the students living in Almy and Ohio, who already have the greatest walks to everywhere on campus?

"They'll just have to deal," Miller said. "They'll be less fat in the long run."

the weight gain.

"The dorms are so located so you have to work before you get your food," said Miller. "Because of our location, we were able to at least keep off five pounds from the Freshman fifteen."

However,