In a season that has seen limited success, senior Jenna Zeyfang has earned the Enterprise Athlete of the Week honor for her matchless goalkeeping.

Her water polo team won two games at the CWPA tournament hosted by Chatham University.

"My team and I are proud of our performance against some of the toughest competition in U.S. collegiate water polo," Zeyfang said. "I am very happy that our past hard work has helped us to achieve our present victories."

Zeyfang has kept the Lady Lions in all of their games, making pivotal, game-breaking saves.

She tallied nine saves and three steals in a 7-6 win over Chatham.

Later in that same day against Utica College, the senior goalkeeper stumped the Pioneers with key saves late in the game to force overtime, and an eventual 9-8 win.

"As a result of last weekend's wins, our team will be seated in 7th place for the 2010 CWPA D-III championships," Zeyfang said. "I look forward to what we will do together as a team to finish strong for our 2010 season."

The Erie native from Erie First Academy has been playing for head coach Joe Tristan and the women's water polo team for three years. She won the 2009 team award last season for leadership and scholarship.

"I can rely on my co-captain, Danielle Wilson, to have my back both in and out of the pool," Zeyfang said. "We have worked well together this season to help prepare our team physically, mentally, and emotionally for the challenges we have faced."

Zeyfang has already logged 106 saves so far this season for the Behrend Lions, compared to the 102 she recorded last season.

Zeyfang is graduating with a dual major in international business and marketing and is looking forward to ending her senior season with the water polo team with a bang.

The team's success is a major team effort with numerous players contributing to this program so far this season. Along with numerous trips, the team has bonded and came together for what is hoped for as a better future.

"I could not have achieved this honor without the help of my teammates," Zeyfang said.

Senior goalkeeper Jenna Zeyfang played a major role in the team's success in the CWPA Tournament at Chatham University.

Local team losers look to be NFL draft winners in 2010

Texas quarterback Colt McCoy could be a possible draft option for the Buffalo Bills, who currently hold the No. 9 pick in the draft.

By this time next week, the fortunes of quite a few NFL teams will change.

It's all part of the gamble of the NFL Draft.

All 32 teams will be given the opportunity to select the top college players for their teams, and it all starts on Thursday, April 22 on primetime television.

The St. Louis Rams currently hold the first overall selection, and the rumored selection is Sam Bradford, a quarterback from Oklahoma.

However, the Cleveland Browns have had discussions about trading up to that first overall selection to take Bradford.

The Browns currently hold the seventh selection in the 2010 NFL Draft. If they choose to stay at No. 7, there are a number of prospects that they could choose.

They have expressed interest in Penn State defensive tackle

Jared Odrick, but he projects to be a mid-late first rounder.

There are no guarantees when it comes to the draft, however, so the Browns could select him.

The Browns have numerous holes on their team that they need to fill, so they could choose to go a number of ways.

Other possible selections include Jimmy Clausen, a quarterback from Notre Dame, Eric Berry, a safety out of Tennessee, Joe Haden, cornerback from Florida, and Earl Thomas, a safety from Texas.

As of now, the Browns hold five of the first 92 selections in the draft, so it will be an interesting day for Browns fans.

Thankfully for them, Tim Couch is not eligible to be drafted.

Neither are Courtney Brown, William Green, or Brady Quinn, other former first round flops by the Browns.

If you couldn't tell by now, the Browns have often left the draft with pocket change while other teams grab the Benjamins.

The second local team, the Buffalo Bills, hold the ninth overall selection. Long gone are the days of Jim Kelly, or even Doug Flutie.

Instead, Bills fans have been subjected to such masterpieces as J.P. Losman, Trent Edwards, and even the star-studded Brian Brohm. Like the Browns, the Bills could draft a young signal-caller (quarterback) to lead the team in the future.

If Jimmy Clausen made it to the No. 9 selection, the Bills would be wise to scoop him up.

However, the Bills have other options for their quarterback conundrum.

If Jim Kelly's meeting with Tim Tebow is any indication, the Bills are seriously considering him.

Colt McCoy from Texas and Tony Pike from Cincinnati could also be options.

As for their first round selection, they could choose to go in a few different directions.

C.J. Spiller, a running back from Clemson, Dan Williams, defensive tackle from Tennessee, and offensive tackle Bryan Bulaga from Iowa could all be choices.

As for the team who has made the news most recently, the Pittsburgh Steelers have opened up a need at wide receiver with the trade of Santonio Holmes.

They could look at several in the draft, but they have other needs, including offensive tackle, offensive guard, cornerback, and safety.

Offensive guard Mike Iupati from Idaho, Center Maurkice Pouncey out of Florida, and cornerback Kyle Wilson from Boise State could all be viable options.

Of course, for Pittsburgh, the draft is the least of their worries.

For causal football fans, tuning into the draft is like seeing a glimpse of your future team a few years down the road.

Of course, sometimes, that's not always a good thing (sorry, Browns and Bills fans).
