Kings: fall concert

We The Kings and J Cole come as part of the Pringles Xtreme Campus Tour, which will take the two performances to 18 campuses between Sept. 29 and Oct. 29. Behrend will be the 11th stop on their trip.

The tour will also set up food and concession stands as well as prize booths. Giveaways both big and small will be in those tents for students to win.

Despite having such a large concert in fall, Rodgers says that it will not affect the annual spring concert.

For that concert, the LEB will release a student survey which will gauge interest in various types of music for the spring concert.

"We want to get a ton of student involvement," said Rodgers. "We're hoping to really get the survey out there and get a lot of responses, so that we get the most accurate choice possible."

We The Kings is a Florida pop-rock quartet which has sold over 2 million tracks and had over 56 million plays on MySpace, according to a release by the band. They have toured across the nation and appeared on Jimmy Kimmel Live and MTV's TRL and Spring Break 2008. They also headlined in the 2009 Vans Warped Tour.

North Carolina rapper and hip hop artist J. Cole (born Jermaine Cole) has been composing his own songs since the age of 15. His influences include Tupac Shakur, Nas and Outkast.

The two bands will have even set times, and will headline together.

Tickets are available now at the RUB Desk in Reed. They cost $10 for students - who can buy two at that price with an ID card - and $20 for the general public. The doors will open at 7:00 p.m. and the concert will start at 8:00 p.m.

United Way up again at PSB for 2010-11

staff writer

Penn State Behrend's student United Way Campaign is up and running for its fifth year in a row and is looking for new members.

Of course, Behrend's own campaign will benefit the United Way Foundation, which is a leadership and support system for nearly 50 countries and territories, including the United States. The three main goals of the United Way are education, income stability and healthy lives for the community.

Wednesday Sept. 22 is the first meeting of Behrend's student campaign, and all interested are invited to attend. The meeting will take place in Reed 112. There are no special requirements for joining the campaign, "just a genuine interest in serving our community as a member of Penn State," says Assistant Director of Residence Life Meeghan Hollis.

In past years Behrend's student campaign has organized events such as a Helping Hands Auction, trash collections in the residence halls, speed dating events, date auctions, and candy sales, in order to benefit the United Way. Last year events such as these raised nearly $4500.

Hollis states, "there are so many opportunities to raise funds for this great cause, it just takes some motivation and creativity."

For more information about Behrend's own Student United Way Campaign, you may contact Meeghan Hollis at mat209@psu.edu or Jessica Skelton-Wolfe at jds192@psu.edu.
