

TRACK:

His coach, Greg Cooper, expressed a similar sentiment, "You can certainly say that not having a facility has limited our success, but I don't like to use the phrase 'held us back.' Track and Field has been a varsity sport for the past 12 years at Penn State Behrend, and in that time we have had a few athletes qualify for and compete at the NCAA championships... I know with a track and field facility many of those athletes would have received that little boost they needed. Our athletes have been dedicated to being better, overcoming the obstacles set before them and improving every year. I think a new facility will make us stronger."

On the other side of that coin, a new stadium would also support and service a larger gathering of spectators.

Garrett Fiscus, a freshman center midfielder for Boys Soccer said, "The addition of the stadium would improve our fan base since the field will be in a more central location. Also, the stadium will certainly raise the level of soccer for our team."

Behrend Athletics is competitive and representative of the Blue and White in every day decisions to sweat, bleed, train and study hard. Support is available to these players from fellow students. The faculty and community are as committed to the class as they are the growth and development of each student and the university as a whole. This stadium would be a monument to that growth.

BRUNO'S:

It will be built using the money from the Student Activities Fee, but the inside will be furnished by the Housing and Food Services and will sell just about everything from ice cream to toilet paper to even canned soup. Elizabeth hopes that this will "reduce the amount of trips off campus that students need to make."

She says that even though she is the manager of Bruno's, she still never knows if she will need to help out in Housing or if she will need to help out with the always busy Saturday brunch at Dobbin's. She said that all the Housing and Food managers help each other out with whatever needs to be done. She tried to compare her new job to her old job, however she says it's not that much different because "in catering you have time to get ready for the event and when it was over you start getting ready for the next one, with Bruno's everyday is the big event."

While she works steadily behind the scenes, we the students will get to just enjoy the same Bruno's we know and love. We will also be able to enjoy the convenience store when it comes into existence.

HOMECOMING

The original deadline for nominations has been extended until Sept. 27, and will be followed by a "Jail Bail" style fundraiser on Sept. 29 and 30. During this fundraiser, nominees will stand on Bruno's stage from 11 a.m. until 1 p.m. collecting money for their "bail". Although participants will be allowed to leave after their bail is reached, they will be encouraged to stay the entire time. This fundraiser will narrow the court down to eight males and eight females, according to who raised the most money during the Jail Bail. The proceeds will then go to the Linked by Pink breast cancer awareness organization.

In an effort to partner with alumni, Homecoming Committee has formed an Alumni Relations Team, which works to reach out to alumni and encourage them to participate in the homecoming events. Specific events have been organized in order to ensure this welcome, including a wine tour and a welcome reception. Alumni have also been invited to the student's homecoming cookout on Sept. 16. The committee also aligned with the Behrend Alumni Society, who generously donated 500 dollars, adding to the previously raised funds and making it possible for thousands of dollars worth of prizes to be distributed during homecoming week.

The highlight of homecoming week is to take place on Sept. 16 at 9:00 p.m. in the Junker center: the white-out homecoming dance.

"The white out theme is appropriate not only for Penn State but also for Behrend specifically. You have a greater appreciation for the term 'white-out' if you have spent a winter in Erie," said Iams. The dance is semi-formal, and the crowning of homecoming king and queen will take place at 9:30 p.m.

Tickets for the homecoming dance will go on sale on October 4 and 5 from 11:00 a.m. to 1:00 p.m. in Reed and the Jack Burke Center. They will be available at the R.U.B. desk on the following days preceding the dance.

SGA ELECTIONS CANDIDATES

Krissy Cole

Semester: 1
Major: Communications Major
Platform: It would be an honor to be on Student Government Association as an Upperclass Senator. I have held several leadership positions throughout my school years including: vice president of the Excel Club, a philanthropy organization; treasurer of the Future Business Leaders of America; and editor of The Chancellor newspaper. As a transfer student, I would like to become more involved by representing my fellow students at this school. I have excellent ideas to contribute for helping to improve campus life. By becoming a senator on SGA I can begin my journey towards making great decisions to influence the future of Behrend.

Ayodele Osibodu

Semester: 1
Major: Political Science
Platform: I want to bring Penn State

Behrend together as a community. I will listen to all concerns and opinions with an open mind and strive to meet and exceed any expectations. I would like to use my position to make everyday for each student better than the last. If elected, I promise to make a positive impact on this campus far and wide.

Timmy Donovan

Semester: 3
Major: Education
Platform: As a Behrend student that has had a great experience at Behrend thus far, I would like to try and further improve Behrend for future students. Something I would like to change at Behrend, because I have experienced this as an education major, are the limits of some majors. Many students, myself included, have had great experiences at Behrend but have to leave due to the fact that they cannot finish their major here. Therefore, if elected, I pledge to work toward getting more complete majors offered at Behrend to allow more students to stay.

Almedina Alicusic

Semester: 7
Major: English Lit.
Platform: Being in the SGA last year as well as the Diversity Director helped me familiarize myself to the campus while helping. I would like the chance to help the campus one last year as a student here.

Lacy Smiesko

Semester: 1
Major: Mechanical Engineering
Platform: When I hear the words Student Government, I think of campus leaders who represent and observe the needs of the student body. In high school I held positions in multiple clubs and organizations that made me an effective leader. I want to continue to be a leader here at Penn State. I am a dedicated and hard working individual that wants to make Behrend full of opportunities for the students. I believe I can help accomplish this by becoming a SGA Senator. If elected, I will dedicate the time and effort to fulfill the needs and wants of all students.
