

"The Learning Tree"

"Hating is a waste of valuable energy", as the film, "The Learning Tree", attempts to clarify the reasons of a minority group's reaction in the current civil rights struggle. The movie will be shown in the Reed Union Lecture Hall, November 7.

'Learning Tree'
Shown November 7

"The Learning Tree," written, produced, and directed by Gordon Parks, will be showing at Behrend on Sunday, November 7, at 7 and 9 p.m. in the Reed Union Lecture Hall. The price of admission will be 35 cents for students with activity cards and $1.00 for other students.

In "The Learning Tree," a boy becomes a man. As Parks says, "The key thing is that the principle character learns to be self-sufficient. Most important, he learns that hating is a waste of valuable energy."

This picture attempts to clarify a lot of things to whites who don't understand why minority people react the way they do in the current civil rights struggle. "The Learning Tree" is set in the 1920's, but it's importance as a contemporary motion picture is its timeliness.

Weller Looks At Nixon's Policy

Dr. Weller, professor in Quantitative Business Analysis at Behrend, will speak at the campus next Monday, November 8 on the economic effects of Nixon's new economic policy. He will be in the Behrend building, Room 101 at 7:00 p.m., through the sponsorship of the Behrend Business Club. All students are invited to attend this meeting, which will take an informative and educational look at Nixon's new policy.

German Film Seen Tonight In RUB Hall

The Captain of Koepenick (English sound track), the second in a series of films presented by the German department, will be shown tonight at 8 p.m. in the Reed Union Building Lecture Hall.

The movie is based on a comedy written by Carl Zuckmayer in 1931. The play is ironically subtitled 'A German Fairytale'. The plot is centered around an incident which occurred in the Berlin of Wilhelm 11 and served Zuckmayer to ridicule German militarism.

A cobbler, Wilhelm Voight, tries to obtain documents required for finding work and fights a losing battle against officialdom. At last he decides to enter the townhall in the guise of a captain, with the sole object of obtaining a passport to leave the country.

The arrogance of the military caste and the narrowmindedness of Prussian bureaucracy are illustrated in sharply profiled types. In Zuckmayer's hands, the story becomes an attack on the revival of the militaristic spirit marking the final phase of the Weimar Republic.

PSU To Support Daily Collegian

University Park, Pa. Oct. On recommendation of the University Council, Dr. John W. Oswald, president of The Pennsylvania State University, has approved a new method of providing financial support to the Daily Collegian, student newspaper.

In place of an allocation from the Associated Student Activities budget, the University will now purchase advertising and circulation services from the Daily Collegian. The amount of money involved is about the same in each case, and the Collegian is assured of needed revenue.

Continuance of the plan depends on the Collegian Board of Directors working out a satisfactory grievance procedure for members of the Daily Collegian staff through amendment of the constitution and by-laws.

The Council proposal also recommended that the Board of Directors devise a system of faculty representation on the Board other than through the University Senate.

The Council study followed President Oswald's request that it consider the appropriate relationship between the University and the Daily Collegian.

"I concur in the Council's view that maximum separation of the operation of the Daily Collegian from the University is desirable," President Oswald wrote. "I believe the Council is desirable," President Oswald wrote. "I believe the Council has established the basis for maximum freedom and responsibility by Collegian incorporated, and in this I also concur."

The advertising to be carried in the Daily Collegian for the University will be daily, weekly, and term calendars of events on campus.
