

SPORTS REPORTS

Could It Be?

by Dave Lojewski
Sports Editor

With the way politics are taking over the sports world lately, don't be surprised if the situation comes along that when a person wins a national championship, they become a main political figure. If this fictional statement ever became true, it might sound something like this:

Reporter interviewing World Champion Miami Dolphin head coach, Don Shula: "Mr. Shula, congratulations on becoming the President of the United States, with your thrilling upset over George Allen (head coach of the Washington Redskins). What factors can you contribute to your startling success?"

President Shula: "Well, I don't see why people consider it an upset. Actually since we went undefeated throughout the year and won the Super Bowl, with fantastic (ahem) strategy, I consider myself as qualified for the job as President than anyone."

Reporter: "Mr. President, have you selected your cabinet yet?"

Shula: "No, not yet, but I have a few people in mind."

Reporter: "Could you give us a brief hint who you might select?"

Shula: "Well, for Secretary of Defense, I was considering Jake Scott. Chief negotiator for the Paris Peace talks is Garo Tepremium, because of his ability to keep things up in the air."

Reporter: "What about the war in Viet Nam I heard you were sending over some new army personnel?"

Shula: "Yes, I figured what we needed to do was first control things on the ground, so I sent over three men to take care of the ground attack. They were Major Larry Csonka; Captain Jim Kick and Captain Mercury Morris. Csonka will be the main figure while Kick and Morris will share the duties. To take care of the air attack I am using two field generals. First, is General Bob Greise and backing him up is General Earl Morrell."

Reporter: "I also hear that you replaced one of your best pilots. Why is that?"

Shula: "Yes, Captain Kurt Knight was once a fine bombardier but lately he keeps missing the targets."

Reporter: "Well, changing the subject, I heard that you planned on changing the nation's capitol to Miami. Is this true?"

Shula: "Yes it is, because I feel the people in Miami are the greatest. They are always jubilant and waving their white handkerchiefs. I figure if anything ever goes wrong they're always ready to use them to cry on."

Reporter: "Do you think that Congress will go along with this idea?"

Shula: "No, I left it up to my chief aid, Garo Tepremium to pass the bill in Congress, but it was intercepted by the House and turned down."

Reporter: "Well, thank you Mr. President for letting me take up your valuable time, and I wish good things come to you in the future."

Reporter: "Well, this concludes our interview with newly formed President, Don Shula. We are sure he will fulfill the needs of the American people with his brilliant strategy in handling situations. It was rumored today that former President Richard Nixon will coach the Washington Redskins next year. Upon hearing this the former Chief of State replied; "It's not that I want to coach a professional team so much, it's just that all I want is a fair chance of becoming President again."

Job Placement Opportunities For Perspective Graduates

Sign-up for job placement interviews for perspective graduates in both baccalaureate and associate degrees, is taking place in the Student Affairs Office. Material is also available on most of the companies in the Job placement program and notices will be posted concerning specifications and cancellations of interviews. Resumes are being requested and also index cards containing vital information concerning after graduation plans, so that the Student Affairs Office can keep the graduates up to date on job possibilities.

Waynesburg Wins

By Renee Heaslip
Sports Writer

What can I say about Saturday's return match with Waynesburg? I can give lots of possible excuses for our rather poor game: the bus was too warm and by the time we got there we were ready to go to sleep, we had lost a close one to them only a week before, or it was the farthest we have traveled so far.

Maybe if we had had an extra five minutes we could have won but we didn't, so we lost.

The Cubs were rather slow and took a while to get moving, where the Yellow Jackets jumped right in and took the lead.

They made their shots, and they counted, as the Cubs couldn't seem to keep their hands on the ball.

Individually in shooting, four players were in double figures, Glenn McKinney with 24 points and Larry Szoszorek with 12; Chris Gross and Paul Ruland each with 11 points. Denny Deiner led in turnovers with 9 and McCKinney and Szoszorek led in rebounds with 7 each.

Toward the end of the game the Cubs perked up and came within 6 points of Waynesburg at the final buzzer. Let's wish our Cubs luck at Gannon against Point Park.

Larry Frabrizi and Julio DeMarco are the co-captains of Behrend's wrestling squad. The grapplers are striving hard for a winning season. Perhaps the Ashland Tournament this Friday.

Grapplers race Defeat

"We look good, but I know we can do better," said Coach Onorato, who is in his seventh season as wrestling coach, so who will argue he knows his business.

Perhaps the Cub wrestler who deserves most recognition at this time is the Captain, Julio DiMarco. Julio, who placed sixth in the Nation Junior College competition last year, had a nine game winning streak, and is 5 and 0 for this season with four pins.

Next are Larry Frabrizi and Keith Richardson both with records of 4-1 and Brian Yollant who was delt his first loss at Duquesne and now had a record of 3-1-1.

There were two new faces in the Duquesne match, at 150 Brad Foerscher and at 177 Alan Volkman. When asked about the game, Coach Ed Onorato said, "We didn't wrestle up to capacity, the sharpness wasn't there."

The Cub mat men will have their work cut out for them this Friday, January 26, when they participate in the Ashland Invitational Tournament along with eleven other teams, some of which are the best teams in the NCAA and NAIA college division.

Drug Seminar for RA's

The ever present drug problem has somehow managed to work its way into the idyllic lives we lead here at Behrend.

Because a resident assistant is more than a disciplinarian, an awareness of the symptoms as well as the problem is a necessity. The R.A.'s are currently participating in a drug training program.

The R.A.'s have taken part in extensive training through discussion, lectures and role playing sessions under the direction of Mr. Gary Mead. A basic first aid course was also administered to the R.A.'s by Mrs. K.

The R.A.'s at Behrend have been trained to effectively deal with any drug problem that may arise. On February 10 the Erie Drug Counsel is sponsoring a seminar at Gannon College which the R.A.'s will attend to expose them to any new developments on the drug scene.
