

Cubs Need Quick Start vs. Frostburg State

If basketball games consisted of two second halves the Behrend basketball team would be sitting on top of the world after last week's games. Instead, they're saddled with two additional losses.

The Cubs head into Saturday's contest with Frostburg State with a 7-8 record as of last night's game with Grove City. They slipped below .500 by falling to Geneva, 70-61 and Waynesburg, 81-76.

Against Geneva the Cubs were victimized by cold shooting in the first half and trailed, 40-26. They turned things around somewhat in the second half, but it wasn't enough to avoid coming out on the short end of the score.

The story was much the same in the Waynesburg game. The Cubs again found themselves down by 14 points at the half as a result of shooting only 30 per cent. They made a comeback on the strength of 50 per cent shooting in the second half, but once again the rally fell short.

"In the second half we played probably our best basketball of the year," said head Coach Roger Sweeting. "If we played that way in the first half, it would've been a heckuva ball game. Unfortunately, a half a ball game is not enough."

Behrend was hurt by the inability of their guards to come up with a good offensive game. Their two backcourters, Larry MacAleer and Pat Gahr, managed 8 points between them. Mark Chesko, who recently had a couple of twenty points games at forward, was held to two.

On the other hand, Geneva's 5'4" Spencer Johnson was a thorn in the Cubs' side all night as he chalked up 21 points. He also did his damage by continually driving inside, forcing the Cubs to commit themselves, and then slipping the ball off to his teammates underneath for easy buckets. "He's like a waterbug, like a Greg Pruitt on the basketball court," Sweeting remarked.

"We shot well, in the second half, played good defense, rebounded well. We did everything we had to do—except win," Sweeting added.

The play of Jon Kennedy was one of the bright spots for Behrend. He drew the task of guarding Geneva's 6'9" Clyde Soule. Despite giving away three inches in size, Kennedy held Soule to 15 points while scoring 11 himself. "I would commend Jon Kennedy on his play. He did a good job on both ends of the court," Sweeting pointed out.

Jim Davis ended with 17 points for the Cubs while Jack Gordon had 11 and Jeff Gillette, 10.

Overall, Sweeting termed the Cubs performance versus Geneva as "respectable," but admitted that, "we're at a point now where we want to be more than respectable."

In the Waynesburg game, Behrend's comeback brought them to within one point with two minutes remaining. Waynesburg hiked the lead to three and Behrend came down to set up for the "sure shot". But the Waynesburg defense forced them to shoot from the outside and then grabbed the missed shot, held the ball and ran the clock out.

As far as Waynesburg was concerned, the end came none too soon. They'd seen enough of Jim Davis to last them for a long while. The Cub forward poured in 26 points, came down with 14 rebounds, and had ten assists. "In my estimation Jim Davis played the best game at Waynesburg that he's ever had, and he's had some good ones," Sweeting stated.

It wasn't quite enough to offset the offensive fireworks of the Waynesburg backcourt tandem of Jim Keller and Kevin Bealko, who combined for 48 points. In the two games against Behrend this year, the pair have scored a total of 100 points.

Other leading point-makers for the Cubs included McAleer with 10, Gillette, 11; and Gahr and Chesko, 9 each. Chesko also pulled down fifteen rebounds.

Sweeting attempted to explain his team's failure to consistently pull out the close contests. "I think at this point it's a matter of mental attitude and confidence. I'm afraid we lack that mental toughness."

He also admitted that, given one dominant player, those narrow losses could have been converted into wins. He feels that his team must prove to itself that it can win in the clutch. "Until you've proven you have the ability to win, it's a tough corner to turn. We haven't quite turned it."

When the Cubs face Frostburg on Saturday, they'll be up against one of the quicker teams in the district, a team that likes to use full court, pressure defense. They're also one of the smaller teams the Cubs will face, with a front line standing 6'4", 6'4", and 6'5".

IM Competition Hot 'n Heavy

by John Roach

Bowling, five man basketball and a possible free throw competition highlight the winter intramurals.

The bowling tournament, already three weeks old, is led by the Zelds III team 6-2, with the Aces Wild Quartet close behind with a 5-3 record. The top individual bowlers this year are Jack Figurski with a 168 avg. and the league's high game 206, Brad Bova, second high game with a 204 and Gary Bokach, second high avg. with 160. John Moore, student director of the league is very pleased with the turn out and he hopes that all participants are enjoying themselves.

Down at Erie Hall on Tuesday and Thursday nights, five man basketball is found. There are two divisions this year consisting of the dorm teams and commuter teams. In the dorm division, we find a tie for first with T.C.O.B. and the Best having 5-0 records. Close behind these two are Punkin' Patch, Royal Mountaineers, and Fives are Wild, all at 3-2. On the commuter side of the league, the Nads have sole possession of first place at 4-0 with the No Names, and the Green Rabscallion 3-1 in a tie for second place. Mr. Stoner is very pleased with the turn out and is looking forward to the playoffs.

One disappointing note in the spring intramurals was the turn out for the free-throwing shooting contest. Mr. Lauffler said he will re-schedule the competition if "students express some interest to me about it."

Each of the officers is responsible to make available a listing of student records within his area of responsibility indicating the purpose, storage, security, and disposition of each student record. The Vice-President for Student Affairs will be responsible for maintaining a University-wide listing of the records, files, and data collected on individual students.

VII. POLICIES ON DISCLOSURE OF STUDENT RECORDS

The following guidelines will be utilized with respect to the disclosure of student records:

NOTE: In no case will letters of recommendation and other information obtained or prepared before January 1, 1975 which were written on the assumption or expressed promise of confidentiality to the authors be available for inspection, disclosure, or challenge. Letters of recommendation and other information written and/or compiled after January 1, 1975 are available to students in accordance with guidelines which follow.

A. Disclosure to the Student:
The student is accorded the right to inspect in the presence of a staff member, official university records, files, and data primarily and directly related to himself-herself. This right includes an explanation of any information contained in these sources. The student is entitled to such rights within 45 days of the time that he-she personally appears in the appropriate University office to initiate such a request in writing. If the student cannot personally appear, he-she must submit a notarized request to the appropriate office.

Additionally, a student is entitled to inspect all instructional material, teacher's manuals, films, tapes, and other supplementary instructional material used in connection with any research or experimentation program of which he-she is a part and which is designed to explore or develop new or unproved teaching methods or techniques.

A student may waive his-her right to access to confidential letters of recommendation which he-she seeks for admission to any educational agency or institution; for employment; or for application for an honor or honorary recognition. The student must be notified on request of all such individuals furnishing recommendations and the letters must be solely for the stated purpose for which the student was notified and for which he waived his right of access. Such waivers may not be required as a condition for admission to, receipt of financial aid from, or receipt of any other services or benefits from such agency or institution.

Where any such records, files, or data contained information relative to a third person the student is entitled to be informed of only so much of that record as pertains to himself-herself. Each record-keeping unit of the University will establish procedures for accommodating requests for access to student records. An administrative charge not exceeding the actual cost to the University of providing access may be initiated in certain areas for access to record information.

While public law does not require copy privilege this may be done at the discretion of the responsible administrative officer and at a cost to the student.

B. Disclosure of information to Third Parties:

Disclosure of information contained in student records, files, and data is normally controlled by the student. Such disclosures will be made to a third party only on the condition that written notarized consent is obtained from the student and only on the condition that the third party will not permit additional access to the information by an additional person without further written consent of the student prior to such an additional transfer of information.
