The first step in detecting breast cancer is in your hands. The next step is in yours.

More than 90% of breast cancers can be detected with the use of a simple, easy-to-use device called the human hand.

But if you're over 50, or have a family history of breast cancer, please ask your doctor about a mammogram. It's a low-dose X-ray that can detect a cancer long before a lump can be felt.
