Manufacturers Defect

Lamaha Inc. of Japan announces recall of thousands of motorcycles.

The motorcycles were recently recalled after 27 people were injured. The cause for the recall was discussed by Lamaha representative, and ironically the new Behrend Library coordinator, Dr. Wang Houg Lao.

Dr. Lao had this to say, "The problem seems to have originated on the production line. As you know we the Japanese have been trying to manufacture anything we can get our hands on. Well, Lamaha has been getting into donut making. Americans love donuts, we make anything Americans like, because we know they'll buy it."

"Anyway, it seems as though some of the extra large powdered donuts were accidentally placed on the rear rims of the motorcycles. The problem you have here is when the rear wheels get wet the donuts get soggy and an accident usually occurs. Luckily, no one was injured and we are now fixing the motorcycles free of charge."

We finally got Dr. Lao to shut up and asked him what he thought of American Industry. He had this to say. "You guys kicked our butts at Nagasaki and Hiroshima. We looked at that as the first half of a 40 year football game, well we're a second half team and now we're gonna kick your butts all over the place."

On that note, the Collegian writer decided it was time to end his work on the Bullsheet and to go back to the office and collect his thoughts.

Motorcycle Defect Victim

Behrend Jail Break

Four sinister Behrend College deviants attempted an escape from the Behrend Jail this weekend.

Included in the escape attempt were two members of the infamous Kuhl Gang, and the B.M.O.C. (Bad Men on Campus) gang.

The Kuhl brothers were doing time for criminal trickery and jeopardizing the lives of fellow Behrend students.

After a thorough investigation (not by Behrend Jail officials), and an anonymous tip from a Mac and Donald Lil' or No Meat Hamburg Stand employee the students were arrested.

The investigation results described the Kuhl Brothers of illegally substituting Dobbins Hall hamburgers in Mac and Donald Hamburg buns.

The brothers would buy large quantities of Mac and Donald hamburgers, eat the hamburgers themselves, and then substitute Dobbins hamburgers into the Mac and Donald buns.

Then the brothers would sell the burgers as Mac and Donald burgers at inflated prices.

The scheme netted thousands of dollars and went unnoticed for months. However, recently a Behrend student tried to exchange a hamburger for a milkshake at a local Mac and Donald Lil' or No Meat Hamburg Stand. The well trained Mac and Donald employee, who handles exchanges at the stand, went through the normal exchange procedures. The procedures consist of checking returned hamburgers for L.S.D. lacing and a standard meat quality test. These tests are run for your safety and, to confirm that the hamburgers being exchanged are indeed Mac and Donald burgers.

When the employee found out that the hamburger contained even less meat than the Mac and Donald hamburger the case unfolded.

The brothers were sentenced to 6-8 weekends in the Behrend Jail, no phone calls to Pittsburgh or N.J. for two months, and 3-4 Dobbins meals a day.

Also caught in the escape attempts were two members of the B.M.O.C. Gang. The brothers were serving 6-10 years of hard time for three separate crimes.

They were both convicted of bumper-sticker switching, no Behrend I.D., and wearing excessive clothing in the Behrend Bookstore.

The brothers had apparently failed in a bumper sticker switching plot. The plot involved putting their front bumper parking stickers on their back bumpers and putting their back bumper stickers on their front bumpers.

The brothers were also apprehended in the Erie Hall for not carrying their Behrend College I.D. at all times, and for illegally wearing large multi-pocketed coats and large baggy pants in the Behrend Bookstore in an apparent plot to steal some commemorative bookends.

Collegian Donates Hat And Coat Rack

Keeping with the current tone of artistic abstract functional art (i.e. the concrete Behrend Bookends), the Behrend Collegian has donated a Hat and Coat Rack to Behrend College.

The Hat and Coat Rack can be viewed outside of the Collegian office. You will see the coats and hats of many students who are utilizing this functional art form.

We spoke with Collegian Editor Chucky-Wucky Wheckman about the art form.

Chuck, "We (Sonny Whipsack, the other Collegian editor and I) decided that it was time the Collegian did something for the College community. Putting out one of the finest college newspapers in the country, and sponsoring dances (coming up on January 29) wasn't enough, so we presented this rack."

The staff was being chased through the Gorge by an outraged library employee at the time of the photo.

Also, many of the self proclaimed journalists currently on the Collegian staff are wanted by the police for some reason or another. Thus, they deemed it beneficial to not be photographed.

Behrend students are caught by hidden camera trying to escape from jail.
