Tempus President Announces Expansion

By: Phyland Robertson

"1984 offers a unique and exciting opportunity for TEMPUS (the student literary magazine of Penn State - Behrend) to expand into an exceptional publication by making use of professional printing services," announced Michael R. Kitchen, President of the 1984 TEMPUS Experience.

According to Mr. Kitchen, the new procedural format will have many advantages.

"For the first time," he said, "a literary magazine can be produced for the students of Behrend which should rival production standards of major universities."

He also said that the number of magazines available for distribution could rise "almost 50 percent, to 500 copies, "which is a current goal."

Mr. Kitchen noted that students enrolling in TEMPUS will now have the opportunity to learn current, professional printing techniques, such as page layout, proof arrangement, type selection, and error correction, "while maintaining complete editorial control."

He also believes the content of TEMPUS will differ from previous years, "permitting expansion into areas such as photography and illustration, while continuing to allow expressiveness in traditional forms such as fiction, poetry, essay, and prose."

"This change in format," said Mr. Kitchen, "demonstrates Behrend's continuing commitment to the arts, on campus and for the community."

Mr. Kitchen expressed gratitude, to the faculty and staff of Behrend, "who, with their donations, have made this expanded format possible," to the SGA of Penn State - Behrend, "for their generous allocations," and to the BEHREND COLLEGIAN, for the "constant promotion it has given TEMPUS."

He promised that the staff of TEMPUS would continue working hard to produce the best possible magazine.

Career Placement Office

Workshops Resume

By: Paula Penco

Are you looking for a summer job? Or perhaps that once in a lifetime career opportunity? Well the answers you are looking for are just around the corner at the "Career and Placement Workshops."

These workshops are conducted every Wednesday at noon, in Reed 116. They are under the leadership of Mary K. Eggers, who is filling in for Mary Beth Peterson, in her absence. The schedule of the ten workshops in the series is posted throughout the campus. The next one will be held on February 22, and it is entitled, "Matching Jobs to Majors."

This is an important workshop because a professional career is something that should not be taken for granted. These workshops focus on various topics relating to the beginning of your first professional life time job. They are ideal for graduating seniors who are about to venture out into the working world. They are also beneficial for students who are interested in finding internships or even summer jobs.

The goal of workshops is to acquaint Behrend students with the various job opportunities available to them. They even help students with the preparation for job interviews, which are the most important part of landing a good position.

There are literally thousands of acceptable jobs for continuing and graduating students. Behrend students are interviewing for jobs with national corporations weekly at University Park. Local area companies are also interviewing for prospective employees in the Behrend Administration Building.

A list of companies who are accepting resumes for positions in the extended Erie area, as well as the names of personnel officers for Erie companies are available in the Placement Office. Information on immediate, summer, part, full-time job openings and summer internships are posted on the bulletin boards in the Placement Office located in the Administration Building. So if you are seeking counseling or are just interested in learning more about your prospective career, stop by the Career Placement Center. You might just find yourself.
