Tucker And Kitchen Run For Erie School Board

by Greg Rathbun
Collegian Staff Writer

Eva Tucker, assistant professor of geoscience, and Behrend student Michael Robert Kitchen are running for election to the Erie School Board.

Four positions are available on the nine-member board and Tucker and Kitchen are two of the 16 candidates running. The Erie School Board establishes curriculum, graduation requirements, hires all Erie school personnel, levies taxes, and implements its policies.

Tucker has been on the school board for four years. He believes that change and new ideas are necessary. He also believes that being on the school board "puts you on the cutting edge of being able to provide the best opportunities and atmosphere for young people to achieve academically." Tucker, who feels that he has the wisdom and concern to make good decisions, is "interested in the development of young people."

During Tucker's first four years, he helped to pass the "C" resolution which states that a student cannot participate in sports unless he or she maintains a "C" average. He has also helped expand summer school to contain grades 1 through 12 and has helped expand night school opportunities.

Kitchen, an eighth semester general arts and science major, gives three major reasons for running: to maintain the quality of some of the programs, to continue emphasizing the basics (hard maths and sciences) while emphasizing the liberal arts more, and to end the humanistically-biased education and bring back a sense of morality into the public schools.

Kitchen also favors the application of creation science along with evolution, and prayer in school. He believes in textbook reformation and would like to see an end to 'values clarification' classes in schools.

Kitchen said, "Our children belong to our parents and not to the state. There has been a growing tendency for the state to assume more control of our children's lives. I want to see this reversed."

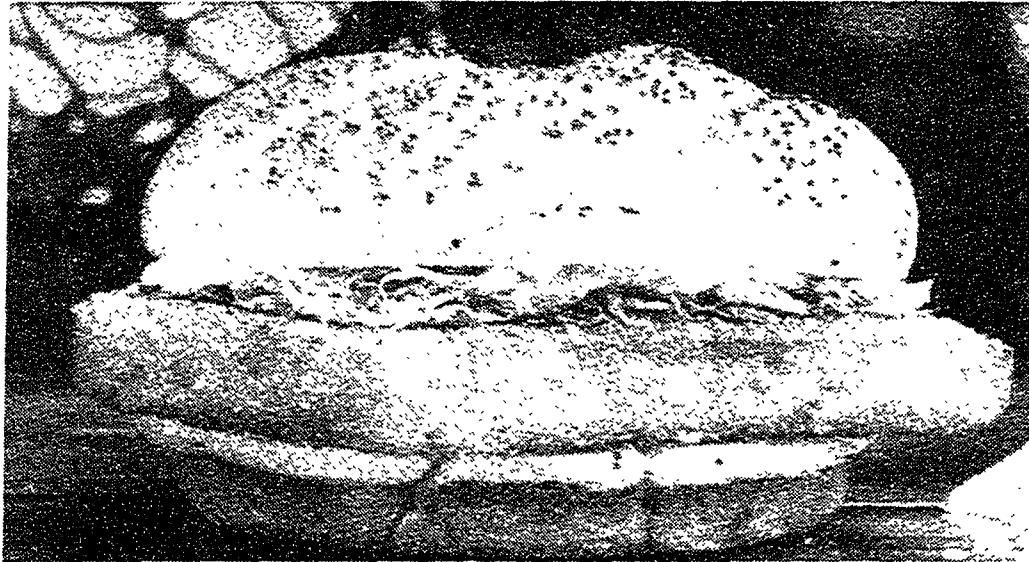

Dear Mr. Mondale —

Please accept my sincere apologies for heckling you during the past presidential campaign....
