

Student Voice:

In a recent Student Programming Council meeting held on Nov. 12, 1985 the issue of screening an X-rated movie at Behrend was discussed. There was much controversy on the subject. Everyone present took different views on the issue. SPC is faced with the dilemma to show the movie, and take the chance of the impact it might have on the students or neglect the group of students requesting the movie.

To get more of a student opinion on the issue the Collegian asked: "What are your views on screening an X-Rated movie at Behrend?"

Amy Hickman: (First semester, Special Education) "I think it's fine if people want to go. It's their choice, and the school is at liberty to show it or not."

Jim Maggio: (Third semester, International Business) "Why not? I bet it would make a lot of money!"

Paul Rossman

Steve Ciabattoni: (First semester, Communications) "No I think they are a poor form of entertainment. I think the movies they show now are fine they don't need crap like that."

Paul Rossman: (Seventh semester, Physical Science) "No! They're stupid. I feel they're a low form of film."

Maribeth Fisher: (Third semester, Political Science) "If a group wants to show it they can show it. If nobody wants to go they don't have to."

people at this school who haven't seen one and they don't go because of lack of transportation, or they don't have the nerve to go see one."

Assistant Dean of Student Affairs. Any club at any time between now and April 15 can apply for a mini-grant.

Upon approval from Grimm, requests go to Behrend's budget committee, after which Dohn Harshbarger, Dean of Student Affairs, and Doug Gerow, SGA President sign the application. The request then proceeds to University Park and is distributed to the mini-grant committee, which includes Grimm, Tom Eakin, Vice President of Student Services and Programming at University Park, Ed Mottle, Director of Student Services and Programming at Fayette, Pat Byeres, Director of Student Services and Programming at Mont Alto, Lynne Duffner, Chairman of Council of Commonwealth Student Governments (CCSG) and two other CCSG representatives.

There is a total mini-grant budget, university-wide, of 25,000 dollars. "There is no limit to the amount of money each campus can have," Grimm said, "and there is still time to submit for this year," she added. Any need in the area of programming or equipment can be met by this fund.
