

Women's Team Revs Up

by Rick Cain
Assistant Collegian Sports Editor

The Lady Lions' basketball team got on the winning track Jan. 11, with a home victory against SUNY-Brockport. Sophomore point guard Lisa Dorenkamp, with 21 points, led the offensive attack with help from junior guard Lisa Butch-16 points, and sophomore forward Michele Madison-15 points. This offensive prowess combined with tight defense and 83 percentage from the foul line, sealed the win, 61-54.

Later that same week, Coach Karin Sobotta took the Lady Lions on the road to face Pitt-Bradford. A slow start saw the team down 42-28 at the half, but they were not to be denied. Forward Michele Madison, with a career high of 30 points and 14 rebounds, led the Lady Lions to an amazing 40 point-30 rebound second half. Point guard Lisa Dorenkamp-17 points, and sophomore guard Denise McCloskey-10 rebounds, helped hold the opposition to a mere nine points in the last nine minutes to complete the comeback victory, 68-62.

The following game saw the team on the road again against Grove City. Another slow start had the Lady Lions down 26-13 at the end of the first half. Again the offense came back, scoring 35 points in the second half, with an impressive showing from freshman guard Tammy Altzman-13 points and 4 steals. Unfortunately, they came up empty on three last second shots and were defeated 50-48.

The next opponent for the Lady Lions was high scoring St. Vincent's. Although the final score may not show it (83-76 with the Lady Lions on the short end), this was the team's best effort of the season. With St. Vincent using a full court press from the onset, the offense performed superbly. Michelle Madison-27 points, Lisa Dorenkamp-21 points, and Lisa Butch-13 points, played excellently along with many other contributing players. Unfortunately, St. Vincent was just too tough.

One of the team's latest games took place at Hiram on Jan. 21. In the first half of this game the Lady Lions were caught flat. Shooting poorly from the floor, the starting five could not get into sync. Coach Sobotta realized this quickly and went to her bench. Senior Chris Huff-7 points, freshman Erica Scribner-5 points, and sophomore Bobbie Bauer-3 steals and 2 assists, all had solid games coming off the pine, but all they could do was keep it close, 78-57.

Super Bowl Preview

by Bob Kelley
Collegian Staff Writer

San Diego's Jack Murphy Stadium will be the site for sports' ultimate game, the Super Bowl, on Sunday, Jan. 31. The Denver Broncos and Washington Redskins will square off for only their fifth meeting in the history of the two teams, in Super Bowl XXII.

Denver advanced to the Super Bowl, for the second straight year and for the third time in their history, by beating Cleveland 38-33 in a thrilling AFC Championship game played in Denver's Mile High Stadium.

Washington reached the so-called "ultimate game," for the third time this decade and fourth time in their history, by outlasting the surprising Minnesota Vikings 17-10 at Washington's R.F.K. Stadium.

The Redskins are the first team in four years to reach the Super Bowl without home field advantage throughout the NFC playoffs.

The three previous NFC champs: San Francisco 49ers, 1984; Chicago Bears, '85; and New York Giants, '86 have all claimed the Super Bowl title.

Denver is coached by former Dallas coach Dan Reeves and Washington has Joe Gibbs at the helm. Both have emerged among two of the league's top coaches.

Starting at quarterback for Denver is John Elway, who has proven he is one of the top quarterbacks in the league by being selected to play in the Pro Bowl on Feb. 6. Elway is very mobile and eludes the pass rush constantly. He reads defenses well and is considered to have the strongest arm in the entire N.F.L. Washington will not totally stop Elway but must try to contain him.

Washington's Doug Williams will be the first black quarterback to start in a Super Bowl. In 1979 he led the Tampa Bay Bucs to the playoffs but lost, then was waived a few years later.

Williams was then picked up by the Redskins last year to back up Jay Schroeder, who was benched at the end of this year for inconsistency. Williams has a very strong arm and can throw the ball deep to sure-handed Gary Clark. They are a tandem Denver will have to reckon with.

Both defenses are sound with Karl Mecklenberg and Rulon Jones pulling the stops for the Broncos and Dexter Manley and Darrell Green doing the same for the Redskins. Manley was one of the top quarterback sackers in the N.F.L.

The last time Washington was champion was 1982, also a strike shortened season, when they beat Miami. The following year they lost to the L.A. Raiders in Super Bowl XVIII.

Denver was blown out in its two previous appearances, against the Dallas Cowboys in 1977 and last year at the hands of the Giants.

The Broncos, after last year's whipping, will be much hungrier this time around and with John Elway at the controls, there is no telling how many points the offense will put on the scoreboard.

Washington's record will fall to 1-1 in strike-shortened—year Super Bowls. It will be close, but it will be Denver by 4.

Some predictions from fellow Behrend students:
John Bennardi: "Denver by 3"
Bob Zandi: "Denver"
Sam Crowley: "Raiders in '88"
Sil Vecillio: "Lets go skiing"

Man of Many Hats

by Dave Bruce
Collegian Sports Editor

Moise Pringle, Behrend's latest addition to the basketball team, is a true renaissance man. In high school, he played basketball on an all-conference championship team and also performed on an all-state orchestra. Also, he was so concerned with his studies that he did not try out for the Behrend basketball team until he "got his grades straight."

The 6'3" 190-pounder played for Christiana High School in Newark, Delaware as a power forward and a violinist. Moise averaged 14 points and 12 rebounds per game his senior year and made first team all-conference and third team all-state. He also made third seat on the all-state orchestra his senior year.

After graduation, Moise received partial basketball scholarship offers to Pitt-Bradford, Bucknell and Washington-Jefferson. But the tuition costs were still too much, and Moise wanted a Penn-State degree anyway, so when Coach Zimmerman expressed interest in Moise he was happy to come to Behrend in 1986.

Moise concentrated solely on his studies until this semester when he went out for the basketball team. Even though it has been two years since he last played organized ball and is still learning the system, Moise has had an impact on the Lions. In the game against Brockport on Jan. 11, Moise came off the bench to score three points and gather five rebounds in only 2 minutes of play. Against Grove City, he had two steals in a limited role.

According to Moise, college ball differs from high school ball in that there are twice as many set plays and more options on each play. Because of the increased complexity, there is increased dependence on team leaders and Moise said that upperclassmen Gary Zang, Gene Gorniak and Greg Green have definitely filled those roles.

He believes that this team has a lot of talent, "Down the line we should do pretty good...the freshman are playing really well. We are strong fundamentally and we should be a very good team in the future," said Moise.

As for the present, Moise is content to be a role-player, filling in wherever he is needed—whether it is as a rebounder or an offensive threat. He is adaptable, the mark of a renaissance man.

three deadlock thanks to a furious comeback by the Philadelphia Flyers even though the Flyers were without their leading scorer, Tim Kerr, out with a shoulder injury. This, and the fact that the Oilers were playing so well, gave the Flyers little hope.

Then rookie goaltender Ron Hextall turned into a brick wall. The game seven showdown ended up being won by Wayne Gretzky and Co., but Hextall, after stopping 204 of the 229 shots he faced, won the series MVP. The Edmonton Oilers have clearly established themselves as the dynasty of the 80's winning their third Stanley Cup in four years.

The year in sports was certainly a great one. Fans from every major sport have something to remember. Hopefully this year will bring as much excitement and surprises as there were in 1987.

Collegian Athletes of the Week

Gary Zang

by Rick Cain
Assistant Collegian Sports Editor

Congratulations to this week's Athletes of the Week, Gary Zang and Lisa Dorenkamp.

Gary Zang was at his usual level of excellence in the past weeks. In the first five games of the semester Gary averaged over 23 points a game while throwing in his usual number of rebounds, assists, steals, and blocks. Gary was also recently named to the ECAC Division III Honor Roll.

Lisa Dorenkamp, the Lady Lions' starting point guard, has quietly climbed her way into the number one spot for Division III three point shooting. While averaging 14.7 points and 2.7 assists a game, Lisa throws in 3.2 3-pointers a game and hits a total of 38 percent of the shots she takes from "down town."

Both Gary and Lisa will receive dinner for two at Barbatos' in recognition of their achievements.
