a few points that it will affect their interest in introducing a new course or topic of discussion.

Gamble offered some ideas to encourage teachers. He suggested a center where teachers could go for advice and helpful hints on improving their techniques. Hopefully, this confidential service would give faculty a new perspective. Gamble said, "We should do what we can to let the best kind of teaching prosper, instead of bringing our stop watches to class."

The lecture, which was held in the Reed Lecture Hall, was attended mostly by faculty.

students to have telephones in their rooms. Presently, there are five pay phones available, which, according to one resident, are often out of order, sometimes for up to a week at a time.

Wilson said she is generally pleased with life at Kanty, but feels that, since rent is higher there than on campus, the standards should be at least as high.

The residents' next move is to seek legal counsel concerning their rights and health codes. Commuter Council president Joseph Cunningham plans to visit officials at University Park within the next two weeks to discuss the situation with officials there.

Cunningham said that the trip to U.P. is necessary because none of the administration at Behrend has enough experience in this area.

Racism Drives Black Students from White Campuses

(CPS)--Many black students drop out of predominantly white colleges because racial prejudice and discrimination leave them feeling lonely and isolated, Oberlin University researchers say.

"Selective, predominantly white institutions are very similar in nature," said Patrick Penn, dean of Oberlin's student support services, at a Sept. 20 conference of the National Council of Educational Opportunity Associations in Washington D.C.

"They are basically white systems, and white systems are discriminatory to non-members." Although Oberlin's overall graduation rate is 70 percent, 20 points above the national average, only about 55 percent of the black students at the liberal arts school earn their degrees.

Inadequate financial aid packages, insensitive, sometimes hostile white student populations and poor academic support programs cause many blacks to leave white colleges before receiving their degree, Penn reported.

His findings come at a time when efforts to expand opportunities for minorities are losing momentum, according to "One Third Of A Nation," a report issued in May by the American Council on Education and the Education Commission of the States.

In response to the study and to the escalating racial tensions on scores of campuses during the last two academic years, many schools

Student Persistence to Graduation at Oberlin College," they felt their white classmates focused too much on their color and regard black programs as "separatist" activities that encourage isolation, Penn said. Penn concluded that improved "retention can be gained only through programs affecting students after they are enrolled at Oberlin," such as academic support.

Black students often cite financial problems for leaving school, but the effects of financial aid packaging on retention are inconclusive, Penn said.

"Grants, scholarships and work-study jobs have been reported to be positively related to retention, whereas large loans reportedly contribute to attrition. However, these relationships are weak," the report said.

The researchers recommended changing financial aid packaging, developing programs to increase sensitivity about racial prejudice and stereotyping, and upgrading student support services as ways to keep black students on mostly white campuses.
