SPORTS REPORTS:MEET THE STUDS (A and B)!

by Tony McGovern

One of the advantages of sports is the legitimate socially approved means of releasing tension and bringing the participants in closer union. It is one of the few areas of competition which brings about a closer union between the team members and their opposition. The idea of good sportsmanship consists of a willingness to win and a friendliness toward your opponent when you lose, because no one likes a sore loser.

This concept is far from passe and here at Capitol there is demonstrative proof. Some members of Studs B and Studs A gathered together for a short interview. Ron Johnson, captain of Studs A and RA in charge of recreation activities in the dorms, speaking with agreement from the other fellows, said "there was a whole-hearted effort on the part of the guys, increased communication between the fellows of 1st floor Wrisberg and 3rd floor Church. The teams help getting people together and brings greater harmony in the residence area." Most of the guys on 1st floor Wrisberg seem to get along and are friendly with everyone. The Studs A and B teams are guys from the floor, with a few exceptions. They all agree the games are for the fun of it, but at times express ambitions of winning. The Studs B team is in second place and their spokesman Jim Cryder said his team will be Number One and they are the best in the league. Unfortunately, Jim will not be physically participating due to a foot injury, a sorry loss since he was the punter. Stan Krumsky, an end and defensive back is also out due to a leg injury. Their injuries were a setback in the game against the XGI team. The Studs A team claims their difficulty in comparison to Studs B was because the teams in their league are tougher, the members of A seemed to approve the comment. The tough teams were the DMZ and the Jaycees.

The intramural football has been the seed for other sports such as Studs bowling league, volleyball team, and horseshoe team. The flag football games were a major cause of injuries, an irony which all the guys found humorous.

The meeting was the cause for much laughter and humorous scenes. I gained another insight into the cohesive theory about competitive sports.
