

Parking Fee

The SGA proposal at $7.50 per year would make up the deficit in a little over five years. In that light, the payments would be spread out over a period of time allowing for a "maximized use by a more generalized population," Spicher said. He was sure that the "five year plan" would work when increased enrollments are taken into account with the assumption that more students would buy stickers because of the lesser sticker cost and the idea that parking in the main lot in back of the classroom building is more convenient.

Currently, students may park off campus (at the elementary school on Wharton Ave.) and at the residence halls and in Meade Heights for free.

Spicher added that the proposed fee is roughly equivalent to payments made by part-time undergraduate and graduate students. However, no mention of a reduction in their fee was included in the SGA resolution.

The next step along the line is Ferguson's task force from which the resolution, if it passes, continues through the University bureaucracy.

Prof. Gilpin Organizes 'Model U.N.'

Capitol Campus, under the direction of Prof. Clem Gilpin, will stage a "Model United Nations" on March 2, 3, and 4. Approximately 15 area secondary schools will send 25 "delegations" to the convention. Contemporary world issues provide the basis for the program which is sponsored by the United Nations Association of Harrisburg, and Capitol's Black Student Union and Delta Tau Kappa.

Because of the limited personnel, the "Model U.N." will not operate with all of the various components of the actual United Nations. Only the General Assembly and three main committees will be included. Capitol Campus students will serve as chairmen of the committees and as Assembly officers, as well as helping to plan the event.

The tentative agenda calls for an initial meeting of the Assembly on Friday, March 2, and then meetings of the committees. The committees are: Political and Security; Economic and Finance; and Social, Human Relations and Culture. Each delegation may submit a resolution in the committee for debate. "If it is approved by that committee, it is then presented to the General Assembly for further debate," Gilpin states. Each delegation is comprised of three high school students.

Resolutions will deal with issues and problems confronting certain committees in the actual United Nations. For example, the Political and Security Committee will deal with problems such as peace-keeping forces (Such as the one charged with upholding the ceasefire in Indochina), disarmament, and refugees. The Economics and Finance Committee will concentrate on general economic development and proportional aid by countries to the United Nations. The third Committee will discuss global pollution, human rights, population control, and problems with drugs.

Prof. Gilpin has been organizing the program since October. But all has not gone well. He stated he sent invitations to over 60 area secondary schools and has received favorable replies from only 15. Support by students at Capitol Campus has also left much to be desired. But it is hoped that after the initial publicity, more students will participate as there is much work to be done in the next few weeks. All persons interested in participating in the "Model United Nations" may contact Prof. Gilpin or Harry Franzreb and Bob Hetzel.

ROGER WELSCH PRESENTS FOLKLORE PROGRAM

Roger Welsch, a professional folklorist from Nebraska, was on hand recently to present a program to Capitol students concerning pioneer life in Nebraska and other areas of the Great Plains. His visit was part of a course which is currently being presented by Dr. Jay Anderson and Prof. Mark Derfman. His program included a lecture to the class and an open presentation of folk singing in the Gallery Lounge, in which he played the guitar and banjo along with short commentaries on the origins of many of the selections.

Mr. Welsch, who teaches at Nebraska Wesleyan in Lincoln, Nebraska, is considered to be the foremost authority on pioneer life in Nebraska and the Great Plains area. His interest in the field of folklore has stemmed from the fact that his ancestors, of German-Russian descent, were among the pioneers who settled in the Great Plains. He has written several books about pioneer life, including SOD WALLS, TREASURY OF NEBRASKA PIONEER FOLKLORE, and SHINGLING THE FOG & OTHER PLAINS LIES. Along with his books, he has turned out one record entitled "Sweet Nebraska Land," which Pete Seger helped him produce. Mr. Welsch is also considered to be the American authority on folk brewing and wine making a fact which is substantiated by a 50 gallon barrel of dandelion wine in the basement of his home. Another of his many interests is the study of the tribes of Indians of the Plains area. He is one of the few people who have ever been accepted as a member of the Omaha Indian tribe, and the Peyote cult.

Mr. Welsch's visit to Capitol was arranged for and funded by the Cultural Affairs Committee, and the Social Science program.
