Hats off to the B.S.U.

We of The Capitolist take this opportunity to congratulate all the members of the Black Student Union upon the apparent success of the Black Arts Festival.

It was quite an enjoyable week. The B.S.U. presented a variety of activities ranging from speakers to basketball to workshop to art to plays and dances to concert to fried chicken. And for a good cause as proceeds benefited the organization's scholarship fund. The events were fairly well attended, and we think the entire experience benefited the Capitol Community.

Several individuals put an abundance of time and effort into the festival, including Evon Golphin, Terrie Aycox, Mike Jones, Steve Berry, Deloras Garrison and others who bear mention. They should all be commended.

Letters to the Editor

Soggy French Fries

To the Editor;

As I sat in the campus cafeteria today contemplating a recently purchased dish of french fries, the disc jockey on WZAP Radio expressed the hope that her listeners were enjoying what resembled the lunch they were eating.

I can't begin to number the times I've exchanged a quarter only to find a group of half-baked, soggy, disgusting french fries.

I can hardly believe the culinary abilities of Servomation employees can be so poor. How long can the student body allow such a deplorable situation to exist? Doesn't anybody really care about the shit we eat?

I've had enough !!

Clarification on Collective Bargaining

In Last week's issue, we printed a letter from Dr. John Antrim, who had objections to the poll conducted by the American Association of University Professors regarding collective bargaining.

Antrim said the poll was "not official and was ignored by many faculty members." In the same vein, he said the questions on the ballot "were so structured as to skirt the real issues which is 'does or doesn't the faculty want collective bargaining?'"

Below the letter, we printed a short article concerning a petition circulated by Prof. Wesley Houser which maintained that the AAUP poll was not official, which supported Antrim's basic argument.

One faculty member who signed the petition has decided to clarify his position in the matter. In a note to the editor, Dr. Lloyd Woodruff said he "signed it in the spirit of wanting to encourage more interest in the issue," and did not necessarily "support" Antrim's position.

CHI GAMMA IOTA NEWS

by Bob Chaapel

The Brothers of Chi Gamma Iota Fraternity would like to take this opportunity to welcome all new students to the campus. Anyone expressing an interest in the fraternity is invited to attend any of our meetings, which are held every other Tuesday at 8 p.m., at the Middletown American Legion or stop off at the XGI office located in room W-110D.

Tuesday, April 3, marked the first meeting of the Spring Term for the Chi Gamma Iota Fraternity. "Education and The Viet Nam Era Veteran" was the theme of this initial meeting. Guest Speakers Mr. Walt Slygh, Academic Services Officer, and Mr. David Kurtz, Regional Coordinator for The Program To Advance Veterans Education (PAVE), presented many new and interesting ideas to the fraternity on this subject.

The XGI's are sponsoring their first kegger of the Spring

Term this Friday, April 13, at the Hummelstown Fire Company. The "Watchtower" will provide the entertainment from 9 p.m. till 1 a.m. Maps, showing directions to the Hummelstown Fire Company, will be available at the roundtable today. Hope to see a lot of new and familiar faces.

The new hours of the PAVE office, located in room E-106, are as follows:

- Monday - 10:00 a.m. till 12:00 noon; 5-7 p.m.
- Tuesday - 10:00 a.m. till 12:00 noon; 5-7 p.m.
- Wednesday - 5:00 p.m. thru 7:00 p.m.
- Thursday - 10:00 a.m. till 12:00 noon; 5-7 p.m.
- Friday - 10:00 a.m. till 12:00 noon.

All Brothers are reminded of the barn painting detail, 8 a.m.; Saturday, April 14. Let's have a real good turnout and whip this barn out in one day.

Guest Commentary Live or Die

ED. NOTE: The Capitolist recognizes its duty to provide space for both student and faculty to air their opinions on a variety of subjects. Following is a comment by a Capitol Campus senior, regarding the current international balance of power.

relationship we have with Red China. All along, Mao's government maintained that if we pullout of Taiwan we would be going in the right direction towards a friendlier relationship. This should be an easy thing for us to do for we should not be there in the first place. What business did the U.S. have interfering in the civil war between Chiang's Nati nationalists and Mao's Communists?

Another reason pointing to the simplicity of a Taiwan pullout is that the U.S. would be stabbing Chiang in the back; something our country does not only do well, but often.

Why this discussion? Because this all ties in with our possible future. China's history, that in contact with the U.S., decides if we will survive or not. This is a crisis in American History and a crisis in the World's future that must not be ignored.

Recently in the news reports of the Communist Chinese creating a super missile, the Soviets firing missiles in the Chinese' direction, and talks of a three sided balance between Moscow, Peking and Washington has led me to a few conclusions. The first of which is, that war between two or all three of the parties is approaching the state of inevitability. China is the intangible at the time! As she grows stronger, the world, in it's present condition, is nearing the point where talking is obsolete.

Speaking of talking, it's fascinating to look at current developments. The first one is that the Soviets still permitted our "illustrious" leader to enter their country after the mining of Haiphong Harbor. The second is the visitation of President Nixon to Red China. The third, and possibly the most important, is the rumor of a U.S. troop pullout from Taiwan. I feel that utmost in importance is the
