The Black Arts Festival has come and gone and the Black Students Union would like to take this opportunity to thank publicly all those people who gave of their time and expertise in the planning development and execution of our week's events.

Our Black Arts Week proved to be quite a success. Most of the events were well attended and proved to be both informative and entertaining. While our principal concern was not one of financial gain, our B.S.U. scholarship fund gained significantly as a result of our endeavor. While we have no way of knowing the total extent to which the Capitol Campus Community gained as a result of the experience of a Black Arts Festival, we feel that we can say with certainty, that thru the efforts of the B.S.U., The Campus has gained significantly, if only in having such a distinguished guest as the Hon. Joseph P. Rhodes, Dr. Donald Henderson, Assoc. Provost, Univ. of Pittsburgh and Ida Minnie, chairwoman of an advisory commission set up by State Sect. of Education Pittenger visit our campus.

All of those students, faculty and administrators who were present at any or all of these speakers' discussions know that the information rendered has serious implications not only for Capitol Campus, but for any other college campus as well.

While our impressive list of speakers contributed greatly to the overall success of the wee. We cannot forget the overriding success of such events as the Harrisburg Independent Academy Drama group and their production of "Mikes other Love", The Talent Show, on Thursday night, April 5, The Show and Dance, Friday, April 6th, with the S.C. L.C. Freedom Choir and Band and the Southern chicken Dinner and Concert with Robert Rengatta and Rufus Harley, Saturday, April 7th, Let's not forget the Art Exhibit that ran throughout the week in the B.C.A.C. Several people wanted to buy some of the work that was on display, however, unfortunately most of the peices were not for sale.

So in closing the B.S.U. gives their appreciation and thanks to Provost McDermott and George Dressler. To Dean Grimm and the office of Student Affairs for moral support. To the Public Information Officer, The Capitolist and WZAP who did a fantastic job in publicity. To the Academic Services Office and the Special Project Officer Mr. R. Segree and Housing and Food Services for helping to make the visiting brothers and sisters from Allegheny County Community College stay here at Capitol a pleasant one and to Pat Murphy who helped place some of those students. To Instructional Services, we give thanks for all the equipment we borrowed for the Talent Show the Show and Dance and the concert. to Twyla Brown, we give thanks for her initial efforts with the Talent Show and to Mark, Tim and Dan and Tom, we give thanks also. We cannot forget our advisor, Dr. Richards; Prof. Gilpin and Prof. La Grone who did an outstanding job on the art exhibit, and, who all three during the entire 6 months of the Festivals development gave us much of their time, energy and support. Last, but not least, we can't forget Jerry South. He gave moral support and direction when it was needed also more often than not he was there when we needed him.

I personally would like to thank all the members of the B.S.U. for their personal contributions to the success of the Week. Although it may take only a few people to plan an event, in the final stretch it takes everybody to pull some of the weight to make an event like this a success.

I know that next years Black Arts Festival, if this one is to be any indication of the benefits such an event can have, can only be bigger and better than this years art festival. I expect that it will explore even more dynamic modes of Black Expression.

Beta Chi presents 'Consumer' Speaker

Jeffrey A. Ernico, Deputy Attorney General in the Bureau of Consumer Protection, will be guest speaker at an open forum being held on Thursday, April 26.

The meeting will be held at 2:00 p.m. in the Gallery Lounge and is being sponsored by Beta Chi, a campus organization which promotes student interest in business environment.

Ernico will discuss the creation and concepts of the bureau, its methods of investigations and current unfair practices presently under surveillance by the bureau.

The Deputy Attorney General was a participant in the Honor Law Graduate Program of the Attorney General's Office in December of 1970. He has been with the Bureau of Consumer Protection since April 1971, and coordinates consumer protection activities in 20 counties.

Ernico is a graduate of the Temple University School of Law and has served as executive director of the Temple Branch of the Legal Aid Society of Philadelphia.

Hbg. Policy Group Stages 'CANADA' TALK

Ross H. Monro, Washington correspondent of The Toronto Globe and Mail, often referred to as Canada's national newspaper, will address the monthly meeting of the Harrisburg Foreign Policy Association at Schindler's Restaurant in Camp Hill on Thursday, April 26.

Mr. Monro's topic will be "Canada's Role in the World Today." The speaker will answer questions from the floor.

The featured address, which is free and open to the public, is scheduled for 8:00 p.m.

Mr. Monro began writing for the Globe, generally acknowledged to be Canada's national newspaper, in 1967. After serving as education editor, he was chief of the Globe's bureau at the Ontario capitol in 1970-71.

A native of Vancouver, British Columbia, Mr. Monro attended the University of British Columbia, where he was active in student politics and president of the University's Liberal Club. After graduation he did graduate work in political science at Stanford University in California. Currently, Mr. Monro is writing a book on U.S. politics.

Engineering Article

In a recent issue of the Sunday Patriot-News, Capitol's engineering technology programs were highlighted by Lewis P. Carbone.

The enlightening article concerning practical technology as opposed to the theoretical aspects appeared in the April 8 issue of the publication on page four of section D.

Welcome Additions

In the past few weeks, there have been two welcome additions to the families of members of the Capitol community.

Ed and Esther Beck had a 7 pound, 6 ounce daughter Rishona on April 17.

It was their first child. Dr. and Mrs. Fred Neubauer welcomed a girl, Julia, their second daughter on March 28.

Pictured are scenes from the Blacks Arts Festival which was staged on campus in the opening week of the term. The talent show and guest speakers are highlighted. A majority of the photographs were taken by Frank DeSantis.
