

Welcome Married Students to Meade Heights

This Fall, an age old request of married students attending the Capitol Campus was honored. Meade Heights housing at last became available to them. Traditionally, married students have had a very difficult time finding housing in the Harrisburg area because of a shortage of these facilities, (particularly after the June '72 Flood) and because of high rents. Some students, unable to find housing were forced either not to come to the Campus, or to withdraw from school later, as it was difficult to pay for accommodations in their home towns as well as rent for "single" housing in on-Campus facilities.

The availability of Meade Heights housing to married students was not brought about to place single residents here at a disadvantage. It was the outcome of deliberation over cold economic fact. The enrollment projection was down last Spring, and with the estimate of returning and new on-Campus residents came the possibility that 35-40 houses in Meade Heights would stand empty. The University could not have afforded the cut in revenue and have maintained the facilities and services which it now provides. Hence the decision to make the houses available to married couples came about.

Couples residing in Meade Heights have signed a year's lease and pay monthly rent for their houses. A decision on whether or not the spaces will be needed for next Fall's incoming students will have to wait until next Spring's enrollment projections for the coming year are in. If it is found that requests for housing by single students will increase appreciably over this Fall's, then the program of "married housing" in Meade Heights will be re-evaluated and a decision made to continue it or not.

A campus community offers the unique atmosphere conducive to learning while we live. Those who are potential "Marrieds" and parents can learn much from this new arrangement. This article is being published to answer some of the many questions regarding this arrangement, and in a spirit of providing some understanding of it as well. Any further questions should be directed to the Residence Living Program Office, 946 A Kirtland Avenue (Tel. 787-1665), or to Mr. Norman Gautreau, Manager, Department of Housing and Food Service in 107 Wisberg Hall, (Tel. 787-7758).

Reader Spotlights REGISTRATION

Well, they did it! They finally came up with a brainstorm to make registration as painless as possible. The secret - staggered location. The students had a little further to walk than usual but it seemed to keep traffic from getting too congested. The advisors were readily available in their respective offices which was a second advantage. For this year's fall registration, the paper work for students was also reduced.

The C.C. Reader sees one major area for complaint. It seems that nothing can be accomplished between the hour of 12 - 1. We realize that the secretaries do deserve lunch but we feel that a staggered lunch system would be better. The final time for registration in the morning was 11:44. When the student left his advisor, he found that the doors to the final check point were locked. He begrudgingly had to wait until 1:00 to finish his task. The hall became a very congested area and the entire process for the rest of the afternoon was retarded.

Otherwise, registration was very fast and efficient. With little change, it could be effectively used for many registrations to come.
