"My parents thought twirling would be good for coordination and discipline. I don't think that they had any idea at the time that all of us would want to be twirlers."

The sisters agree that they have helped each other with baton twirling.

Cindy says, "Kathy is better at it then I am and has often scored higher at try-outs. I always go to her for pointers."

"Cindy's really helped me.
She can see things that I can't see myself while I'm twirling," Kathy adds.

When Kathy and Cindy graduate, the Marching Blue Band should have no concern.
The rest of the twirling Medich sisters may just decide to follow in their older sisters' footsteps.

Come to the Organizational Keggar. Tuesday Night, 9 p.m., January 15 at THE STUDENT CENTER.

Dancing to a real "Live" Band, RAVEN, and free beer for all those of age.

Admission is 50 cents for the fair (it's to help us cover the cost of a great band.)

Twirling Medich Sisters

University Park, Pa. -- A couple of sisters from Pittsburgh are attracting attention as majorettes with thefaststepping Penn State Blue Band.

They are Kathleen Ann Medich, 20 and her younger sister, Cynthia Jean, 19. And at home, there are three younger sisters, also majorettes.

Patricia Ann, 14, and Lynda Lee, 13 are twirlers in the Golden Triangles, a baton and drum corps in Pittsburgh.

And last but not least is Kristen Ann, 3, who has begun training as the fifth family twirler.

Kathy and Cindy, both majoring in Individual and Family Studies at the University, began their twirling career with the Swissvale Hurricanes, a neighborhood corps, at the ages of seven and eight.

Two years of private lessons at the Val-Mar Dance Studios of Swissvale prepared the sisters for their next five years with the Golden Triangles, directed by Larry Cervi who serves as majorette choreographer for the 13 Penn State twirlers.

With this professional touring corps which has been champions for nine years at conventions in the eastern states, the girls performed at the Macy's Day Parade in New York, N.Y., and the American Legion Contest in Niagara Falls, N.Y.

While attending Churchill Area High School, Pittsburgh, Kathy was a drum majorette with the school band during her senior year, and Cindy for both her junior and senior year.

Despite all the training and experience, Kathy and Cindy practice nine hours each week with the Marching Blue Band and four hours on Sunday afternoons with the other majorettes.

Kathy, the first to express interest in baton - twirling, says,
