you because you are making to damn much noise in the house or something, or such, well they could go and file a complaint with the magistrate. So the magistrate hears the case and says okay you have got a bitch, knock it off, if you don't, such and such is going to happen or I think you're wanting too much and do exactly as the township does, formulate the rules and regulations over there by the commissioners and come up with what is best for the group. I think it could be terrific and a wonderful experience. Plus, it would be a training situation for you know, somebody that would want to be a politician. Terrific This is what I foresaw. Somehow it don't come about.

Q. Do you drink or smoke? (Prouser)
A. No, that don't make me lily white, though, I go with girls. No, I've never drank in my life but I've been arrested several times for drunk and disorderly.

Q. How did you manage that? (Prouser)

A. 'Cause I love a good time. When I was in the service I'd always be solicited by the five drunks to go out with them.

Q. So you were a tea tottler? (Prouser)

A. I just never did, smoke, I used to smoke like mad.

Q. Guilt by association? (Prouser)

A. I quit, but when you get arrested and you ask for the corporation counsel, and charge them with false arrest, it's amazing how five guys can go out of town and get sober and no charges. Of course, it's not like that anymore, but I just never drank. Smoke.

Q. All the regular vices. (Prouser)

Thank you very much. (Prouser)

A. Okay, right on. *****

Bressler

Commended

Although this is the first occasion in which I have sought this medium to convey a message to the Capitol community, I want to take this opportunity to commend Professor Robert J. Bressler for his outstanding performance as Chairman of the Faculty Council. A great measure of the academic progress of Capitol during this past year is due to his untiring efforts to aid in the development of an academic system which will help Capitol to realize its great potential.

I know that the faculty takes pride in this kind of demonstrated leadership and the Provost and I want it known how deeply appreciative we are of Professor Bressler's outstanding service. His performance will be a future bench mark for other Faculty Council chairmen.

Dean of Faculty

Hey Person, Can Ya Spare A Minni?

The 1974-75 C.C. Reader will be under my (Jim Bollinger's) direction and editorship. Projecting ahead to next year, we (what's left of the Reader staff) find that we have only three people (including myself) on a staff which will require a great many more students. So, I am here to plead with you to lend us a hand (or pen, if you will).

If you're a junior, or if you'll be attending Capitol next academic year, and you have an interest in writing, typing, reading, advertising, taking pictures, or any number of things that may be useful to us, we can use you on next year's C.C. Reader staff. We will need reporters, including editors, photographers, a staff for our Business manager, typists, and proofreaders in order to get this paper off the ground next year. We plan to go weekly next year and to add a number of very worthwhile features to make this a very worthwhile paper. For this reason, we will need an abundance of everything, and you'll probably be able to dictate your position preference to us. For example, if you like sports, you have an excellent chance to become Sports Editor.

You don't have to be an Edgar Poe or Bill Shakespeare to make it on our staff, and if you are, you'll be our first one. And remember, the benefits of working for the Reader are many and varied: you will have the opportunity of getting into sporting events and other events (like the Impeachment Demonstration in April) at our expense; you get to see your name in print, which should help any deflated egos; we're working on arranging course credits for working on the paper, or some other kind of compensation; and besides, it looks good on your record.

So keep us in mind over the summer, and watch for our Organizational Meetings next fall. We'll be sure that they're well-publicized. All are invited to attend, so please come and help us while sharpening your own skills. I'll be hoping to see you with us next year.

TARNHELM NEWS

Attention readers, everybody! How's that? Pretty contributors, or whatever! The (Damned) clever, eh what?

TARNHELM (Capitol Campus's Literary Magazine, in case you didn't know) will appear! Now stop that snickering. I know the term is (more or less) over and that it would be (practically) impossible for us to circulate a magazine throughout the student body with any hope of reaching more than five or six students, but we have a plan! We are going to mail a copy to everybody! How's that? Pretty (Damned) clever, eh what? Admittedly, it will look a lot more like a newspaper than a magazine full of fine literary accomplishments, but what do you want for free? That's right, kiddies, Uncle Tarnhelm said free. It costs you nothing. Thank-you notes can be dropped off at the C.C. Reader Office. Also, just not I have the opportunity and pleasure of announcing the winner of the $30 first prize of the C.C. Reader's.

POETRY CONTEST

The envelope, please. The winner, for his poem, "Contemporary Poetry: American Realism" is G.D. Hoover! Congratulations, G.D., a fine job! This poem (among others) will be available to readers, contributors, and whatever in the forthcoming edition of the TARNHELM. Await your copy with hope!

Jordan Teaching Award

First of all, what is this award all about? The award was established in 1972 in honor of Dr. James A. Jordan, Jr., a former Capitol Campus faculty member who died in a boating accident in the summer of 1971. The first recipient of the award was Ambrose Klain, associate professor of regional planning. Prof. Klain has been a member of the Capitol Campus faculty since 1968 and teaches both graduates and undergraduate courses.

The second recipient of the award was Dr. James Knestrick, assistant professor of Social Science and Psychology. Prior to coming to Capitol, Dr. Knestrick had taught at the University of Pittsburgh and Harrisburg Area Community College. He also has had five years experience in his field since he received his doctorate from Penn State.

This year's award is going to Dr. Thomas Knight, assistant professor of Social Science and History. In a later edition, we will give credit to Dr. Knight; but for now we would like to say CONGRATULATIONS!!!
