

SGA Elections This Week

by Bollinger-McAllister

Thursday, Oct. 31, the Student Government Association is holding elections for various junior Senate seats. The SGA has been preparing for this day for the entire Fall term. They have been persuading students to get involved in their government since the opening days of Orientation.

Under the direction of President Mike McAllister, and VP Russ Hogg, the SGA has launched an extensive information campaign. The elections are being overseen by the Elections-Screening Committee, chaired by Mark Fey.

The election process began Oct. 4 when the first Election Petitions could be filed. Full time students with at least a 2.0 GPA and a concern for the government were eligible. After filing a petition, the prospective candidate then faced the Screening Committee for final approval to launch his-her's campaign.

Active politicking has been going on since the 18th of this month. The Senate positions are in several different curricular concentrations, and they are: Business, Math Science, Engineering, Social Science, Elementary Education, & Humanities. Each of these areas gets one Senator. There are also openings in the At-Large classification. The At-Large Senators are determined by the number of students enrolled in each area of concentration (that is, the same areas as listed above).

The elections are being held in VENDORVILLE from 9 a.m.-5 p.m.

All full-time students of the Capitol Campus of the Penn State University are eligible to vote in any election of the Student Government Association. That means you, so President McAllister urges you to get out and exercise your right to vote. He hopes the student showing will be better than the last few years, when Senate seats have been won with a total of only two votes, in some cases. So, please come out and vote. If you don't, don't complain if anything happens on campus that you don't like!

ALL-U DAY

By Patricia Gross

UNIVERSITY PARK (APS) -- The Arch Chapter of the Keystone Society is busily planning "the best All-U Day ever," according to Bob Joseph, president of the Arch Chapter of the Keystone Society.

Registration headquarters for commonwealth campus students will be in the Findlay Union Building (FUB) of East Halls, the dorm complex nearest Beaver Stadium. Commonwealth campus students arriving Saturday morning should park in Parking Lot 80, the large student parking area near East Halls.

Registration in the FUB will be open from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Campus maps, directions and information will be available to commonwealth campus students at registration.

This year, a special activities seminar will be held during All-U Day registration. Representatives with information and brochures on University Park organizations such as the Organization of Town Independent Students (OTIS), the Interfraternity and Panhellenic Councils, the Press Association of Commonwealth Campuses and many more will be on hand to exchange information and ideas with commonwealth campus students.

After the football game between Penn State and Maryland, the Arch Chapter of the Keystone Society will sponsor its annual buffet. The buffet will be from 4:30 p.m. to 6:45 p.m. in the Terrace Room of the Hetzel Union Building (HUB). The menu includes a choice of roast beef, Maryland baked chicken steak and spaghetti with meat sauce plus a choice of soups, salads, vegetables, desserts and beverages.

This year's All-U Day concert will feature Loggins and Messina at 7:30 p.m. in Recreation Hall. Many tickets have been sold at commonwealth campuses and the University Concert Committee is expecting a sellout crowd.

For more musical pleasure after the Loggins and Messina concert, the Arch Chapter of the Keystone Society and the Hetzel Union Board will co-sponsor a jammy in the HUB ballroom. The featured group for the jammy will be .50.

After the jammy ... have a great time at all those private parties!

No More Tues. Flicks!

That's right folks, no more going to the student center to see a movie of interest. After a fabulous turnout of a total of 14 people for the first three movies, it was decided by myself and my peers involved that it was totally unrealistic to blow all that money when students on campus are too busy to get off their ass to support a fund raising event. I'll admit the movies weren't that fantastic, but when nobody shows up at all, I have my thoughts as to what this school is all about. It seems to me that if an event doesn't have any beer or other type of alcoholic beverage, it isn't worth anybody's time. In that case (or should I say Keg), that means my job is to satisfy your thirst, and if I have to cater to a group of alcoholics I would rather call in the A.A. (Alcoholic's Anonymous) first.

Grads Get Fellowships

Five students in the Humanities Graduate Program at Penn State-Capitol Campus have been designated EPDA Fellows for the coming year. The fellowships, granted by the U. S. Office of Education under provisions of the Education Professions Development Act, will provide support for these prospective Junior College teachers of Humanities and English while they work toward their M.A. degrees at Penn State-Capitol Campus and serve their teaching internships at the Harrisburg Area Community College. The recipients of this year's awards are Dennis Bartsch, whose home is in Philadelphia; Paula Dunbar of Harrisburg; Vincent Lattanzio of Maple Shade, New Jersey; Kathleen Richards of Middletown; and William Turner of Lewisburg, West Virginia.

Dr. Tishler In Who's-Who

MIDDLETOWN, PA. -- Dr. Nancy Tischler, chairperson of the Department of Humanities at Penn State-Capitol Campus, has been selected for the first edition of "Who's Who in Religion".

Dr. Tischler, who lives in Elizabethtown, is past national president of the Conference on Christianity and Literature. She is currently an editor at large for Christianity Today.

The first edition of "Who's Who in Religion", is produced by the publishers of "Who's Who in America". The new publication provides a listing of over 16,000 biographical sketches of the major figures in the American religious community.

Dr. Tischler, a former Fulbright scholar, has taught and written in the area of religion and literature. Her articles and reviews have appeared in numerous publications in America and France. She has been associated with Penn State-Capitol Campus since its beginning in 1966.

Meeting Spotlights Faculty Committees

by Jim Bollinger

On Thursday, Oct. 24, at 4:30 P.M., in Rm. No. E316, a historic meeting of sorts was held. The meeting was called by SGA Pres. Mike McAllister, and Vice-Pres. Russ Hogg. The meeting concerned Faculty committees and the need for student participation in them, particularly participation by members of the Junior class.

The announcement of the meeting came out as a plea for a "coordinated effort in the proper functioning of the campus". The chairperson of each Faculty Organization Committee was invited, and the meeting saw almost perfect faculty attendance (only two invitees didn't attend).

The meeting was begun by VP Russ Hogg, who quickly explained the purpose of the meeting. He then yielded the floor to the Chairperson of the Library-Faculty Committee, who quickly explained his committee's purpose and gave his plea for members. The rest then followed.

Other Committees represented at the meeting were the Admissions Committee; Academic-Athletic Awards & Scholarships Committee; Bookstore Committee; HACC Cooperation Committee; Computer Committee; Community Relations Committee; and the Committee on Student Affairs. Also represented was a Committee for student-faculty social interaction.

Presentations of particular interest were made by the Awards-Scholarships Committee whose chairperson reported they are in the process of evaluating the Pass-Fail grading system on this campus, and the Bookstore

Committee whose chairperson gave preliminary support to a student plan to start up a used-book store. Also of note was the HACC-Cooperation Committee, which explained that its purpose is to build closer, more effective cooperation with Harrisburg Area Community College in areas both curricular and extra-curricular.

Another committee reporting dynamic ideals was the Community Relations Committee, whose chairperson asked for student assistance and ideas on making Capitol a more important and active force in the Harrisburg Area.

A sizeable proportion of the students attending signed-up for the various committees after the meeting, and many of those were juniors. However, student turnout on-the-whole was extremely light. As usual,

C.C. Prof In Nat'l Conference

Twenty-two universities will participate in a very interesting and most important workshop to be held November 7 and 8 in Washington, D.C. The Department of Transportation has called upon twenty-seven transportation experts to help put together a national transportation policy. Dr. Terence Brown, professor at Penn State-Capitol Campus has been named as one of the experts. Dr. Brown will travel to Washington with other professors from Harvard, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Yale, University of Pennsylvania and others to discuss, argue, and finally present recommendations which will have far reaching effects for all of us.

Dr. Terence Brown was awarded a grant by the Department of Transportation Office of University Research in 1973 to complete his study on "The Economic Analysis of the Taxi Cab Industry in Pennsylvania". He is an assistant professor in the Division of Administration and Business at Penn State-Capitol Campus.

The workshop, entitled "Planning for Urban Transportation Needs" is the second in a series planned by the Office of University Research. Proposed topics of discussion include: "Local Financing of Mass Transit Improvements", "The Role of New Systems in Meeting Urban Transportation Needs", and "How Can Universities Organize to be of Service to their Local Communities".
