Dante's On My Mind

The rain descended on the fast and slippery road as we retreated from history past-into the present tense of reality

Boxes crammed full of the past wondering where the present tumbles into the past-abruptly off I-283 one and one-half miles from Salunga I recognize the image streaming through the windshield as my mind's eye absorbs the spectrum carefully storing the disparate components inherent in my vision as my subconscious snaps the shutter at one thousandth of a second, I am exactly 55 miles over the speed limit racing towards an unknown destination which cannot be comprehended, only imagined and later brought to fruition by an act of unquestioned obedience of sleep!
