

XGI REPORTER

Since the SGA social schedule is packed so heavily with activities for April, the next XGI Keggar probably will not be held until May. So, if you are interested in a Keggar, check the CC Reader in future issues or stop in at the XGI lounge and ask!

The first meeting of the term (under new management) was held on Tuesday, April 1st and the next meeting will be April 15th at the Tiltin Hilton. It would be nice to see some more members attend the meetings!

On frat activities, the tour of the Schaeffer brewery will be at 8 PM, Friday, April 25th. The brewery says there will be free beer! Also, the University of Pittsburgh scrimmage game will be at Hershey at 2 PM on Saturday, April 12th. Look out-the Panthers will be in Lion Country!

The newly formed bowling team standing is 1 and 3 as of the time of this writing.

The frat needs members to man the concession stand for the Spring Concert on May 17. So, if your talents lie in selling hot dogs and drinks, this is great experience. It also looks good on your resume. Come in the lounge and sign up on the sheet.

If you want to go to the Phillies and Braves baseball game on May 16, get $4 deposit in to Ken Harris or Paul Skodacek.

The XGI banner in Vendorville is being painted near John Klock's second home--the pinball machines! The project will be finished within the next few weekends.

In a recent discussion, John Klock asked Phil Horvath about the clock for the lounge. It seems that Klock has an interest in clocks, or is that clock has an interest in Klocks? Anyhow, there will soon be a Klock (I mean, clock) in the lounge.

Yearbooks will be on sale every Friday during the spring term in Vendorville.

In an effort to alleviate the tensions over the pin ups in the lounge, the frat now has a 2 year supply of Playgirl magazines for those whose interests fall in that direction!

XGI Reporter
John Jensen

Henry The K Threatens To Quit Again

Secretary of State Henry Kissinger has again threatened to resign. The precipitating incident this time involves a bowl of jello. Secretary Kissinger, visiting the White House Tuesday for lunch, ordered cherry jello for dessert. However, the only flavor available was lemon, and so he was served this.

Upon being served this substitute, the Secretary became furious. He immediately called a press conference to announce that, unless the Administration reconsiders its dessert policy, he will have no choice but to resign out of conscience.

In a related development, President Ford later issued a statement announcing the formation of a blue-ribbon committee to study the matter. He appointed Betty Crocker to head the committee, and Aunt Jemimah was appointed minority leader.

MS. Crocker indicated that a solution is soon forthcoming, and that Secretary Kissinger has agreed to forestall his final decision until the committee concludes its study.

American Graffiti will be shown April 16th at 8 P.M. in the Student Center.

Crap Put To Good Use

According to a report, fifty million dollars worth of gas generated by bacterial treatment of human waste is going to waste every year, says an engineering professor at The Pennsylvania State University.

The study reports "as a rule of thumb...about one cubic foot of the gas is generated every day for each person..." However, in a related study, researchers at the University's Capitol Campus have found that the waste produced by that particular campus far exceeds the normal output of other areas of comparable size. As a result, the gas generated by Penn State-Capitol Campus could produce enough power to light the entire continent of North America.

Inventor Creates Monster Of A Duck

According to a report, electronic ducks and one of the longest-lasting pacemakers in existence are two of the inventions which can be attributed to a group of engineers helping researchers at The Pennsylvania State University.

Penn State pacemakers have been implanted in two defective electronic ducks at the Milton Hershey Medical Center. Dr. V. N. Chestpain, chief cardiologist at the Medical Center said the ducks are in satisfactory condition and should be back in the streams in time for hunting season.

TARNHELM To Hit Stands In May

Due to the encouraging response to the request for contributions to Tarnhelm, The Capitol Campus Literary Magazine is indeed a reality. The Tarnhelm Staff is reiterating its invitation to all Students, Faculty and Staff to share their artistic talents in Tarnhelm. Contributions are considered from virtually and artistic medium--art, photograph, prose, poetry, criticism, drama...

Submissions can be deposited in the Tarnhelm collection box, which is located in W-110. The C.C. Reader Office. Any correspondence concerning pick-up of art or photography or requests for general information can be carried on through the collection box, or by contacting Peggy Dillion (944-1997) or Maureen Ryan (757)5022)

The tentative publication date for Tarnhelm is the second week of May, the deadline for contributions is April 15.

Pa. Profs Meet On Campus

The Pennsylvania division of the American Association of University Professors held its 22nd annual meeting recently at Penn State-Capitol Campus in Middletown.

Temple University's president, Marvin Wachman, delivered the main address. He spoke about the problems confronting higher education in Pennsylvania, particularly the collective bargaining contract.

The national average pay raise for faculty members in 1974-75 is about 7.5 percent. But the consumer price index rose more than 12 percent. As Donald Price, President of the Pa. AAUP said, some professors "must be living on the air in their lungs, especially those who got less than the average raise."

Dr. Robert Graham, head of AAUP at Penn State-Capitol Campus said, "The meeting was useful because a number of topics were aired, but also because it brought AAUP to meet at a campus location." Graham commented that the 55 participants agreed their association should stay in touch with campus life by holding their meetings at college locations.

Marvin Wachman, President of Temple University, addresses a meeting of the American Association of University Professors held on Campus recently. Photo by Prouser

Whaton Avenue Sunrise. Photographed by Bollinger

Dr. Ralph Frey, Business Prof, poses with his two daschunds, Debit and Credit, who will be registered in the Accounting program as soon as they are paper-trained. Photo by Jane Kinsey

One cold windy morning last week, an intrepid soul was ballooning over the main building. READER - Telephoto Bollinger

will STUTTS 3pm

an evening with mark twain

April 21