

Packard Speaks

By Frank J. Dalosio
Staff Writer

George Packard, the Republican candidate for the U.S. Senate gave an informal talk on Wednesday, October 22 at 8:00 p.m.

The talk took place in the auditorium and was sponsored by the campus veteran's fraternity, Chi Gamma Iota (XGI).

Packard is running for the seat now occupied by Senator Hugh Scott.

Prior to his decision to run for the Senate, he was an assistant to the U.S. Ambassador to Japan (1963-65), the Chief Diplomatic Correspondent for NEWSWEEK (1965-67), and the Managing Editor of the Philadelphia Bulletin (1969-75).

Packard is presently engaged in an unusual campaign strategy—he is walking across Pennsylvania in an effort to reach the people.

His effort, he says, is to more fully comprehend the opinion and attitudes of the people he wants to represent.

Packard says, "The government is too big, too remote, too corrupting, too impersonal and too costly."

He says, "The government is also far too busy shuffling papers to be accountable to the people."

He would like to see this all change. He says, "Politicians won't change this, but the people can...if they care enough to make the spirit come alive again."

Here are some of the points Packard discussed on Wednesday evening: "Jobs should be available for all Americans who want to work. Welfare should go only to those who cannot work."

He also said, "Federal spending through the giant bureaucracy in Washington is out of hand. Let's control it. For example, I strongly favor the Republican-sponsored idea of revenue sharing, where communities can decide for themselves how to spend tax dollars. Let's get rid of costly programs that aren't working."

He concluded with, "Let's welcome and hear our young people and give them leadership they can believe in."

Oswald Gets Elected

Dr. John Oswald, president of The Pennsylvania State University, assumed the presidency of the Association of American Universities on October 21. This organization is comprised of 48 of the leading universities in the country.

He succeeds Dr. G. Alexander Heard, chancellor of Vanderbilt University.

Dr. Oswald a year ago was elected vice-president of the Association and in that role served also on the Executive and Finance Committees of the Association. Dr. Kingman Brewster, Jr., president of Yale University, is the new vice-president of the Association.

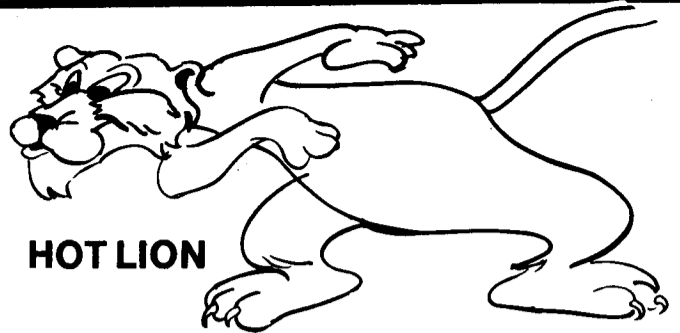

Penn State, in 1958, accepted the invitation to membership in the Association which recognizes outstanding graduate education and research programs.

The University of Pennsylvania and the University of Pittsburgh are the other universities in Pennsylvania which hold membership, the University of Pittsburgh having been extended membership last year.

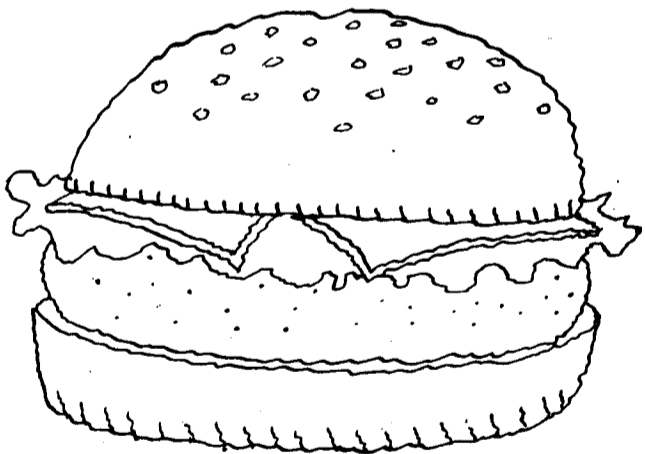

Twenty-four of the members are public institutions, and the other 24 are private universities.

The Association, founded in 1900, considers issues of common interest to the nation's universities. Among those currently under discussion are the financing of universities, support of research and graduate studies, quality of classroom teaching, equality of access to higher education and policies related to government support of research.

Kiss the big burger good-bye.

According to economists, hamburger's going to hit $25 a pound in 20 years. So start stashing your money away each and every month or you'll never be able to afford it.

Life insurance is a good way to help you save regularly for the future, while giving you needed protection.

Stop by our campus office and let's talk over our life policy. You won't have to kiss anything good-bye.
