

Penn-Staters Produce T.V. Show

"Renard the Fox," an animated children's special, will be televised on Saturday, Nov. 8, 1975, at 6:00 on WLYH-TV channel 15.

This special program was produced as an experiment in children's television programming, by Ewen and Shirley Gaby, a husband and wife team from Penn State University.

The half-hour program features Renard, a super-egotistical fox who thinks he's the greatest creature to walk the earth.

Renard does not realize that his two friends, both Magpies, are always setting traps for their "friend", who is too blind to see what is really happening.

Finally one of the traps is successful and Renard gets snared, but is rescued by a passing rabbit, who teaches Renard the meaning of humility.

The story is an adaptation of a French fable.

Muscles alone aren't enough.

Even the toughest pro needs protection. Shoulder pads, hip pads, helmet—with these, a player can give the game all he's got, without fear of injury.

Life is much the same. Good health is important, but to get the most out of life, you need protection, too. That's where Living Insurance comes in. It can give you the security of knowing that your family will be protected, if you die. And, it can provide a reserve of funds for emergencies, education, retirement. at the protesters.

When the marchers entered the Commonwealth National Bank in Harrisburg's Market Square they were met by a phalanx of reporters from the electronic media.

One of the reporters, Marsha Kaplan of WTPA, asked whether Virginia Sassaman and the other protesters supported the official affirmative support position of the Pennsylvania N.O.W. towards Lesbianism.

Sassaman replied, "of course", but stated later that she felt such a question was irrelevant to what they were protesting at the time.
