Frat Meets

Chi Rho has been slowly building up a reputation as a viable campus organization. Father Kealy's Third World Liberation Christianity lecture and discussion was a success on November 21, with approximately 20 participants, including both students and faculty.

An Eccumenical Service is being planned in conjunction with Harrisburg Area Community College at the Trinity Lutheran Church in Steelton. The tentative date is January 23 at 7pm.

Reader Survey Results Are In

In the weeks prior to the Christmas break here at Capitol, the staff of the C.C. Reader was collectively struck by a paranoid thought. Who really reads this rag?

Now, granted some of the paranoia stemmed from working on term papers, studying for finals and sniffing poorly processed printer's ink, but during a staff meeting, Otto (the typesetter) put down his glass of Muscatel and argued eloquently that indeed this was a valid question and that we should take a survey to find out exactly who reads the "Reader" and what they'd like to see in their paper.

Since Otto absolutely never puts down his Muscatel and never, ever has a lucid moment, his question could mean only one thing. Divine Guidance!

So acting upon this vision, we helped God's prophet with the rest of his Muscatel and went out to take this survey.

Herewith are the results of the survey, along with some constructive (and not so constructive) comments made on the survey sheets by the faculty, staff, and student body of the Campus.

Note: 115 surveys were completed. 385 were shredded in the men's room.

Comments:

"News coverage isn't too important because it is usually obsolete by press time. The best part is features, columns, letters which can sit for a week or so and still be applicable."

"If there are more credible letters to the editor they should be published. Letters from the 'Grand Wazoo' are a waste of space (that type of letter)."

"I'd like to see a larger, much larger newspaper (content wise). More topics concerning the student body in general. Dig for news on campus."

"The vulgar language used is not necessary."

"I feel as though the C.C. Reader is a piss poor example of a university newspaper."

"C.C. Reader doesn't seem to be available to everybody. I have not seen a copy."

"I think it is a good publication, much improved over a few years ago, it has a good appearance and good coverage of the campus news."

"The writers need to infuse their work with life, to get and keep attention and make the paper less boring."

A "United Nations" Student Security Force was at work on campus over the Christmas holidays.

Chief Paul reports that his student force included a student supervisor from India and two patrolmen from Indonesia and Taiwan. Also making up this international force were two patrolmen from Reading and Hummelstown.

As you can see, the campus was in good hands and prepared to cope with any international situations that developed.

Repeat Rule Dropped

Courses taken this Winter Term 1976 and thereafter, will not be eligible for repeat under this rule which has allowed a student to replace an F with a C or better in the calculation of the grade point average.

Present degree candidates may, as long as they maintain their degree status, utilize the course repeat rule (M-3b) for courses already taken (Fall Term 1975 or earlier) under the conditions of the rule.
