Interns Get Experience

supervisor, attend a minimum of three seminars at Capitol, write a report on the organization of the agency, the nature of the program and the underlying problems or needs, and learning outcomes based on work experiences.

The internship is commonly taken over a two term period based on an eight to ten hour work week in the agency.

Credit is given equal to one course unit.

For those who prefer a more intensive environment, there is the Urban Term, which is offered only in the spring term and is the equivalent of a full three course load.

According to Masters, who is chairman of this program also, responsibilities include working 20 to 40 hours per week in an office, attending at least ten seminars and submitting written reports of them, development of a reading program in consultation with both agency supervisor and university advisor, maintaining a log and submitting a final report.

George Crowell, an Urban Term student, said the program was "interesting".

For journalism students, there is the media internship. This program is headed by Mark Dorfman, American Studies professor.

According to Dorfman, the internship is mandatory for all students who wish to graduate as journalism majors. The program counts as a full term load.

Dorfman said those wishing to participate in the media internship must be approved by an advisory council composed of local media representatives.

There must also be written evidence of abilities, a letter of reference from the advisor and a letter of reference from a professional journalist.

The EDET cooperative education program, headed by Dr. Grenier, is designed for electrical engineers who have already earned an associates degree.

According to Grenier two groups, one beginning in July and the other in January, alternate in attending classes for six months and working for six months.

The employer pays a salary based on real world concepts--approximately $800 per month.

For Masters of Public Administration, there is Public Administration 530. This is a required course for all except those who have had three years of public administration experience. The program directors are Dr. Poore and Mr. Munzenrider.

The course places the student in a related agency where he works part-time for two terms and full-time for a third and final term.
