Rick Fry makes his opinions known as he casts his vote in the recent S.G.A. election, here. Barb Kafferlin and Paul Skodacek help by explaining the procedure.

Eshbach Wins Election

with the results and thanking the people who worked and voted for him, Eshbach had this to say:

"Now begins the real test. It's up to this new S.G.A. to become familiar with their duties and responsibilities. Once that is done, then we can get down to the business of becoming a real active voice for students at Capitol.

In the next two weeks I plan to speak with each newly elected senator, plus the other executive officers. Once this base is established, we must decide what issues the S.G.A. wants to tackle.

One thing I can definitely say right now--this isn't the last you've heard from this S.G.A. member, and it won't be the last time you hear from this new S.G.A.! As president Kennedy said 'The torch has been passed....'

It's now up to the new S.G.A. to take it and be an advocate for students rights. But, this isn't a one-way effort. We need student help too. Let's get together now and make that effort."

Votes were counted Tuesday night by Barry Foltz, and students Rich Laychock and Todd Malpass.
