Display Of Antique Quilts At Capitol

The Capitol Campus is sponsoring a display of antique American patchwork quilts from the reference collection of "Joel Sater's Antique and Auction News." The quilt collection was compiled by Joel Sater, noted journalist and author.

Over thirty-five quilts of various size, shape, color, age and condition will be on display in the Gallery Lounge from September 20 through October 23. According to Roberta McLeod, coordinator of student activities at Capitol, a written description of technique for each quilt shown will be provided as well as live demonstrations. A slide show of quilts not able to be displayed will also be shown continuously.

Mr. Sater first began this folk art collection at a public sale seven years ago. Since then he has acquired between 300 and 400 patchwork and appliqued coverlets, as well as a variety of quilting frames, sample patterns, and other materials related to the art. This quilt display is only part of a unique reference collection of material covering a variety of unusual subjects that Mr. Sater developed to provide source material for collectors and students.

Formerly the author of the syndicated column, "Antiquing with Joel Sater," Mr. Sater received his B.A. from University of Iowa and is working for his master's at Penn State-Capitol Campus. A free-lance writer for popular magazines and journals, Mr. Sater lectures on various aspects of the field of antiques and collecting. He is also the founder and publisher of the well-known collector's bi-weekly newspaper, "Antiques and Auction News."
