

FREEZE YOUR BUTT OFF

By Ed Perrone

Okay, everybody, time to steal a couple trays from the cafeteria -- it finally snowed!

Actually, there are quite a few of us around here who could do without the stuff. But, when the first snow of 1977 started to fall last Thursday night, it came in full force. Five inches were dumped on the Middletown area by Friday morning, which led to very wet and slippery conditions all day. The temperature held at around 20 degrees (-7 degrees Celsius), and winds whipped up to as much as 30 miles an hour.

Then, on Sunday, a major winter storm warning was issued, and "eight inches or more of snow" was predicted for Sunday night and Monday. This failed to materialize in quantity, but instead mixed with sleet and freezing rain to make conditions even more sloppy and treacherous.

During the weekend, people throughout the area were kept busy digging themselves out from under the snow. The clean-up operation at Capitol was hampered at the start by a breakdown of the snowplow almost as soon as it arrived on campus at 6:00 a.m. Friday. The resulting two-hour delay wiped out any chance for clean roads on the campus until much later in the morning.

Also, the Main Building parking lot, which would have been cleaned before anyone arrived, was filled with cars by the time the plow could get to it. In spite of this, Mr. James Rorabaugh, head of the Maintenance Department, said that the campus roads were "no worse than any of the state highways in the area."

Still, there were cars and people sliding all over the place. The only person who seemed able to cope with the snow was the guy who was seen Friday afternoon going from the Main Building back to the dorms--on skis.

PROF HAS HEART ATTACK

Dr. James McAree has had a heart attack. He won't be able to teach this term. He's expected home from Hershey Medical Center in about 10 days.

Dr. Lemuel Molovinsky will be teaching Dr. McAree's SoSc 370, The Modern Non-West (2nd period), beginning Monday the 17th, in the same room.

Dr. Stuart Goldman will teach SoSc 458, Contemporary Eurpoe (Period 4) in place of SoSc 449, Contemporary Britain and the Commonwealth. All students in the class will be automatically transferred into the course. If they've already had the course, see Dr. Masters in W-153. The first class will meet Monday, January 17th, in the same room.

On behalf of the fraternity I would like to welcome everyone back from Christmas break. I trust everyone had a good vacation and is looking forward to another term at Capitol Campus.

The first thing on the agenda is to congratulate the XGI's #2 bowling team for its outstanding first place finish last term. Thanks to Bill, Darrell, Bob, Paige and Larry for bringing home the trophy to the fraternity.

Also under the heading of sports, the fraternity is sponsoring a basketball team this term and if anyone is interested, signs are posted inside the fraternity lounge as

"MONTGOMERY TO MEMPHIS"

In commemoration of Martin Luther King's birthday, Capitol Campus will present the film "King: Montgomery to Memphis" on Thurs., Jan. 13 at 8:00 p.m. in the campus auditorium.

The film is more than a tribute to Dr. King, it is a history of the Civil Rights Movement. It depicts the struggle for equality and justice from 1955 to 1968. Through actual newsreels and to where and when the practices and games will be held.

Vince Johnson, our social committee representative, wanted me to inform everyone that our next keggar will be January 29th at the Hunter's and Angler's Club in Middletown. The group will be Red Delicious, which was the same group we had at our last keggar and was quite a success. Maps with directions will be available for those unfamiliar with the area. The seniors who were here last year can verify that the keggars held at the Hunter's and Angler's Club were a lot better and space was ample. Be sure not to miss this first keggar!

television film footage, the movie shows the Civil Rights Movement from the Montgomery bus boycott of 1955 to the Sanitation Workers Strike in Memphis in 1968.

The film is free and the public is cordially invited.
