

New Student Gov't. Needs Students For Committees

By Cliff Eshbach

The two week administration of Student Government President Joe Mahar is now in the midst of a big recruiting drive for volunteers to serve on S.G.A. and Faculty committees.

The representatives are to give the opinions of students within the committee structure of Capitol Campus.

In the past, these committees have decided several important and non-academic issues on campus.

According to President Mahar, the important faculty committees to fill are the Faculty Council, Academic Affairs. Student Affairs, Academic Awards and Scholarships and Physical Plant committees.

The Student Government committees that will be looking for members are the Election Screening committee, and the know what they look like.

Even the maintenance workers would talk to students! In a friendly tone, too!

Well, if you haven't gotten the point by now, it seems that Dr. South said. this campus has to go through a period of soul searching. Not just on one level, but throughout the entire campus community. We must look at ourselves in a very critical way. Because if we don't, Capitol Campus will end up like the Centre County Campus (you know, that big branch campus). This is something no one should ever wish on anyone. I pray that it isn't too late.

Currently, some of these same faculty committees are discussing the possible changes in the campus' system from unit to credit, and the possible change from a term to a semester calendar.

Science, and Graduate programs. There are also three senator-at-large positions open. According to President Mahar, anyone interested in any of the Senate or committee positions should contact him in the S.G.A. office, W-110.

The fees paid to Resident Assistants (R.A.'s) may be reduced and standardized, according to the Director of Student Affairs, Dr. James

The Meade Heights and Residence Halls R.A.'s are now being paid different amounts. A Meade Heights R.A. receives $473.00, While Residence Halls' R.A.'s get $630.00 per term.

According to Dr. South, the Student Affairs Division (S.A.D.) does not consider this fair, since all R.A.'s "perform similar functions" regardless of location. The new rates will be equivalent to the calculated. accepted cost of room and board for the Residence Halls,

The R.A.'s fee reductions are only one of several alternatives S.A.D. is considering for balancing the Divisions budget.

Other alternatives include: reducing the number of R.A.'s; and closing the Coffee House in the Meade Heights.

"Distances that R.A.'s would have to cover," Dr. South said, "makes reducing the number of R.A.'s very unlikely."

The Residence Living program of the S.A.D. pays annual rents to the Department of Food and Housing for the use of the Coffee House in the Meade Heights. Now S.A.D. is assessing the justification of these payments in terms of the usefulness of the Coffee House to students.

Another reason for considering the fee reductions, Dr. South said, is to save enough of the residents fees to provide for R.A.'s in the summer if possible. There are usually no R.A.'s in the summer term .

"Everything we do in the Student Affairs Division has to be justified in terms of students benefits," Dr. South concluded.

The first of the two was, only 10% of the student population, the number of people who voted, was not representative of the entire student bidy. The court voted 2 to 1 on this charge with Justice Ed Deitt dissenting.

In a correlated charge, Inyang said, because such a small number of people voted, S.G.A. should dissolve itself.

On this the court unanimously voted "no", saving. while 10% of the student population is not representative of the entire student body it is undoubtedly representative of an involved segment of students.

The final opinion of the court was lack of sufficient merit in the charges to warrant a new election or review of the election.

All 5 Justices were present: Mike Burke, Ed Deitt, Jerry Rhen, Dwight L. Webster and Debbie Schwartz. Also present were election screening committee members: Ray Martin, George Rovnack, and Charles Alesky. Joe Mahar newly elected S.G.A. president was also there.

Dr. James G. McAree suffered a heart attack and died Thursday, April 21 in his home. Dr. McAree was professor of Social Science and History, and was with Capitol Campus since 1969. He leaves his wife Ceil and children. Ann and Ian.

A memorial service will take place at the All Saints Episcopal Church, Elm and Valley Road, Hershey on Friday, April 29 at 11:00 a.m. In lieu of flowers the family asks that donations be given to the Building Fund at the All Saints Episcopal Church.

From The Administration

We were deeply saddened to learn of the death of Jim McAree, Professor of Social Science and History, on Thursday, April 21, 1977. Dr. McAree, who joined the faculty of The Capitol Campus in September of 1969, has made a significant contribution to the development of the University at this location. A dynamic teacher with an unequalled anecdotal style, Professor McAree has been revered by students and colleagues alike. Included in his eight years of service to Penn State was a stint as Social Science Program Head. With sympathy to his family and appreciation for his notable record, we commend his services to the University and the area. We shall miss him.

His mind was sharp, penetrating and unbelievably quick, and it was buffered by a devilishly sophisicated sense of humor. Indeed, of the few geniuses I have been able to meet, he was one of very few wise enough to laugh at himself.

He was capable of caring deeply, and of quiet cynicism when he realized that nothing could be done by caring about a given problem.

He had personified everything that had been great in British tradition and everything that was good about America.

His classes were entertaining education. Talking with him after class was educational entertainment.

He was truly the last man I've met, who caused me to say to myself, "That's what I'd like to be when I grow up."

I know that I will never reach his heights.

But having known him, I will keep striving.

If one's teachers are what makes a person, those of us fortunate enough to take classes with Dr. McAree were made by the best there was.

This University, this campus and this building have very little magic about them. Last Thursday they lost almost all they had.

I will miss him. I know I shall never see anyone like him again.
