Trustees Vote Tuition Hike

By Jeff Stout
Staff Writer

The board of trustees of the Pennsylvania State University voted Saturday to increase the tuition for the Spring Term in order to cover a $1,260,000 deficit in the university's budget.

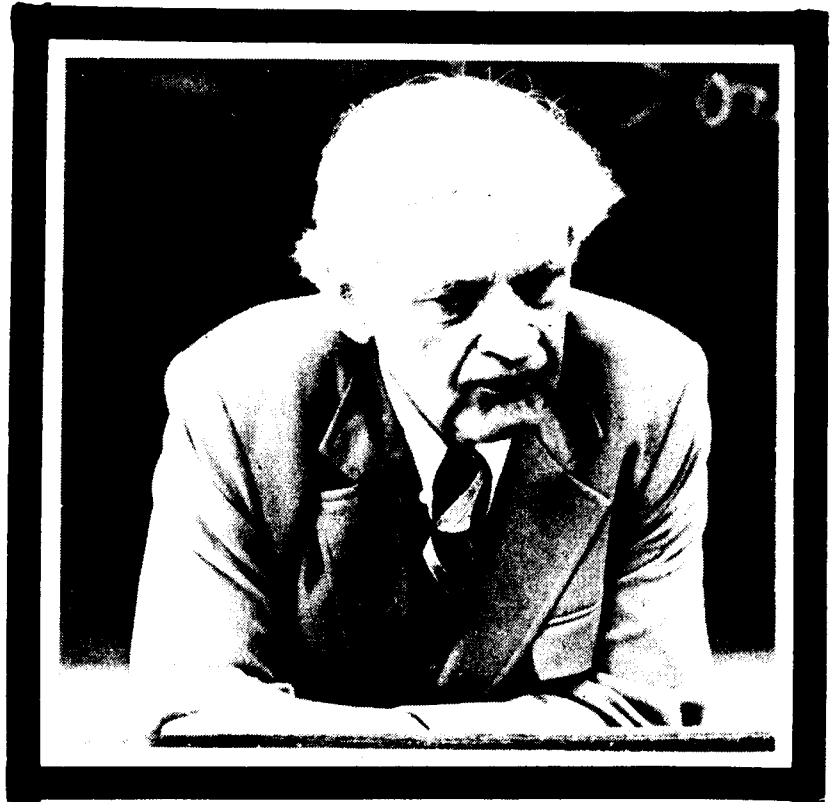

According to University President John W. Oswald, the deficit is a result of a $3 million cut from the university's appropriation from the governor on December 22. The university is also faced with $454,000 in interest on the $54 million that it was forced to borrow because of the delay in state funding.

The tuition at Capitol Campus will increase to $51 per credit for resident students, $115 for non-resident undergraduate students and $118 for non-resident graduate students. This raises tuition from $396 to $411 for a full time resident student.

During a two hour discussion the board considered making up the deficit by assessing a surcharge to each student. Student representatives also suggested a deficit budget that would require no tuition hike but it was refused.

All campuses except the Hershey Medical Center will be affected by the increase and students at University Park will have their tuition raised from $421 to $456 for a full time student.

Dr. Heindel Retires

Middletown - Dr. Richard H. Heindel has retired from Penn State University's Capitol Campus with the title Professor Emeritus of International Relations. He came to the new upper-level campus in April 1967 as its first Dean of Faculty and served in that capacity until 1973 when he assumed full time teaching and research duties.

He had previously served Pratt Institute and Wagner College as president, and the University of Buffalo as Vice-Chancellor. His government service included posts with the U.S. Embassy in London, the Library of Congress, the Department of State, the U.S. National Commission for UNESCO, and the staff of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. Wagner College bestowed on him a Litt.D in 1957, principally for his contributions to the intercultural relations field and U.S. information libraries.

He is editor of the international affairs section of the magazine Intellect and president of the Foreign Policy Association of Harrisburg. He plans to extend his writings and will develop consulting services for overseas business and education.

The Candidates

By Frank Lynch
Staff Writer

Let us end the confusion right now. Robert P. Casey is the former state Auditor General and is now a Democratic candidate for Governor. Robert E. Casey is a kindly old gentleman from Cambria County who was elected State Treasurer by the witlessness of Pennsylvania voters and the shrewd opportunism of a Harrisburg barkeeper.

Although this article has nothing to do with Treasurer Robert E. Casey, it is interesting to note that he was unknown to state politics before his election in 1976. He spent much of that campaign vacationing in Florida, while the "magical" name which he happened to possess worked a surprising runaway victory.

The man for whom most people thought they were voting is Robert P. Casey, and he is the subject of this article.

An attorney from Scranton, Robert P. Casey served a term as state Senator, then launched two unsuccessful campaigns for governor in 1966 and 1970. But it was his eight years as auditor general that won him such positive name recognition. In that time, he tried to professionalize the department by employing many CPAs where there were few or none before, and by maintaining a steady stream of attacks and criticisms on the Shapp Administration policies.

President's Council Meets

The future of campus social events was discussed at a meeting of the President's Council on Monday night in the Gallery Lounge Lounge.

Roberta McLeod explained problems that are now present in campus social events and suggested ways that they might be remedied.

In the past, on nights of club sponsored keggars, there has been damage done to campus facilities. At a keggar last week there was a fluorescent lighting fixture broken along with the glass door to the student study in the Student Center.

So that keggars at Capitol Campus will not be shut down, measures to be taken by the sponsoring organizations were deliberated.

Suggestions for a more varied social calendar were also discussed, with ideas of "all night movies" and "a night at the races" being specifically mentioned.

Members present at the meeting and the organization they represent are as follows: Stephen Nailor, Phi Beta Lambda; William Stockler, Chi Gamma Iota; Debra McConnell, Accounting Club, IAA and Beta Chi; Michael Benner, Beta Chi; Mark Servinsky, Chess Club; Douglas George, C.C. Reader; Anniken Howell, NOW; Dale Jancic, Outdoor Club; Joe Mahar, SGA; R. Lewis, IAA; and Gary Reneker, MHBOG.

Weekend

Weather

Don't put away your snow shoes, more snow is expected on Thursday night and Friday morning according to the Weather Bureau in Harrisburg. Saturday is expected to be cold and windy with temperatures in the 20's and low 30's. Sunday should be fair.
