

CAPITOLITE 1978

SENIOR YEARBOOK PORTRAITS

Tuesday, January 31, and Wednesday, February 1

free

Sign-up sheet on bulletin board next to Records Office.

FREE

Cont'd

That's fine, but how does he feel about tuition hikes for Penn State caused by recent legislative irresponsibility?

In an interview with the C.C. Reader, Casey shared concern about funds for state-aided institutions such as Penn State, but blames the mess on a "Lack of executive leadership by the Shapp Administration."

Casey said that a mistake was made by including state-funded schools in the non-preferred budget, thus enabling funds for our school to be held hostage pending the results of a power-politics stalemate on Capitol Hill. But it was not just a case of 203 legislators playing political football, but "inadequate planning by the Governor's Office."

Asked if he would favor spending like last year's hold-up, he answered that he didn't know, and that any decision he would reach would be contingent upon the budget Shapp will submit for fiscal year 1979.

In his bid for the governor's chair, Mr. Casey faces stiff competition in his own party from such hopefuls as Lt. Gov. Ernest Kline and former Pittsburgh Mayor Peter Flaherty.

But if Robert E. Casey's non-campaign for treasurer is to bear any lesson for Robert P. Casey, it's that the name familiarity carries formidable potential. If an unknown clerk from Cambria County can command hundreds of thousands of votes simply by running on his name, then Robert P. Casey should enjoy a groundswell of support. The name that made Robert E. the state treasurer may well work in reverse and make Robert P. the next governor.

ASSERTION TRAINING GROUP

'78

A SERIES OF SIX WORKSHOP GROUP SESSIONS

LEARN TO:

KNOW WHAT YOU FEEL

SAY WHAT YOU MEAN

AT HOME, AT SCHOOL, ON THE JOB

Where: The Counseling Center, Room W-117

When: January 25, February 1, 8, 15, 22 and March 1, 1978
Wednesday afternoons - 1:30-3:30 p.m. - W-117

Registration Deadline, Friday, January 20, 1978

No charge for students

For further information and registration, contact the Counseling Center, W-117 or phone 787-7733.

This Workshop is the third in the "Directions '77-78" Program of Workshops for students sponsored by the Counseling Center.