 The Photo Club displayed some of its latest works in the Gallery Lounge this week. The exhibit will end on Wednesday of next week. New in the show this year are some color prints, which the club has developed the ability to handle.

Although the club was set back by a Fall Term revamping of the darkroom and the rough period of the Winter Term, it has laid plans for an active Spring Term. The Capitol Campus Photo Club meets weekly on Thursday nights at 8:30 p.m. in the rear of the Admissions and Placement Building, off to the right of the entrance of Security.

Some of the upcoming attractions are "How to present a slide show," color photography, and maybe a field trip or two. The faculty advisor, Ed Trunk (engineering professor and avid photo hobbyist) has given discussions on lighting techniques, different camera equipment and the use of filters. Ralph Hanes, better known as the dorm group photographer, knows about Photo mounting. Bruce Hoffman has a priceless antique camera collection.

Anyone interested in joining the camera club is invited to attend the meeting or call Tom Gans (club president) at 944-1520.

Come on out, capture that special moment with your camera, and share it with others. You'll be glad you did.
