DISCUSSIONS cont'd

the effect of which is much like a late sixties rock guitarist.

Del McCoury's last lp with his old Dixie Pals (before they all quit to become Square Deal) is MY Kind of Grass. The band is in top form. Del does not seem to have slakened his hold on good vocals and everyone cooks from "The White House Blues" through "Caracas" and "Birmingham Jail" to "Bustin' Out the Seams." Another fine job on par with his earlier Rebel effort.

should also mention that Dino Danelli, drummer and former Rascal, contributes some fine percussion work throughout the album.

It is a shame that the song writing is so poor. The instrumental work is very good, but the themes of the songs all deal with love and hurt and the relationships between men and women. It seems that the album is aimed at attracting a large listening audience, but does not produce anything different or challenging. None of the songs are longer than five minutes: a trait attributed to Top 40 hits.

Don't get me wrong. The band has potential. They are good musicians with enough diversification to produce some quality material: but something more is needed if Fotomaker is ever going to surpass the popularity its members achieved in their former groups.
