The Capitolite '79 Needs An Editor

Editing a yearbook requires no experience. A staff has organized publishers have been contacted, pictures are being taken. Someone is needed to organize and edit. The publishing company will send a representative to assist in these areas and to explain all facets of publication.

If you are interested or would like more information see Maureen Doyle in W-129.

CLEP Test, October 21

Penn State-Capitol Campus announces the College Level Examination Program (CLEP) test will be administered on Saturday, October 21 at 8:30 a.m.

The CLEP test is designed to assist persons in obtaining college credit for learning attained outside the classroom structure. It is divided into two parts: the general battery of tests and the specific subject exams. The general battery of tests covers five areas: English composition, humanities, natural sciences, mathematics, and social science and history. The specific subject exams are designed to measure knowledge gained in previous college courses.

This month CLEP will include a version of the new English composition test which will include a 45-minute essay section and a 45-minute multiple choice section. The other version is a 90-minute multiple choice exam which will be offered at all of the administrations during the year.

Deadline for application for the general battery of tests is Wednesday, October 18; deadline for the specific subject exams is the last Friday of the month previous to the exam.

For further information, contact the Admissions Office, or phone 787-7734.

The CLEP test is administered the third Saturday of each month. The next testing date will be Saturday, November 18.
